KU quarterback runs into Black Shirt wall

by Jim Johnson

Put yourself in David Jaynes' place.

You're a sophomore quarterback for a major college football team. You've never started a college game in your life. One hour before a game against the No. 1 rated team in the nation, the head coach comes over and says: "David, you're going to start today."

YOU WALK ONTO the field and 68,331 red-dressed fans are breathing down your neck. In the first half you fail to move your team past the 50-yard-line, lose three fumbles and don't record a first down.

You lose the game, 55-0. You're team rushes for minus 42 yards and you eat the football all afternoon. Okay, how do you feel?

If you're Jaynes you sit in the corner of the Kansas dressing room, cut the tape away from your heavily taped legs and say: "I feel lousy, I was really embarrassed out there."

Jaynes, Kansas' highly recruited sophomore quarterback who once turned down Alabama's Bear Bryant, experienced what all quarterbacks have experienced against Nebraska's Big Red Black Shirt defense. He lost 44 yards rushing and completed just seven of 21 passes.

"I WASN'T TOO happy about starting the game in the first place," said Jaynes. "I was told an hour before the game that I would start. It's an ugly feeling to get your first start against the No. 1 team."

Jaynes, who had raised Jayhawk hopes after leading Kansas to a big win over Kansas State last week, said he didn't know what to expect when the game started.

"Coach (Don) Fambrough just told me that things might not always go my way, but I had to stick in there," said Jaynes. "This is the first time I've ever seen Nebraska play and they were incredible."

Nebraska's defense is five times better than Kansas State's defense."

That's quite a statement when you consider that the Wildcats were No. 2 in the nation against the rush two weeks ago and held Colorado to only 97 yards rushing.

"I know K-State was supposed to have a good defense when we played them," said Jaynes, "but they're nothing like Nebraska. I had time to pass against K-State, but Nebraska just didn't give me an opportunity to setup. They really come at you."

NEBRASKA'S DEFENSE, in limiting Kansas to minus 42 yards rushing, established a new school record. The old record was minus 17 yards against South Dakota.

"Gee, that's embarrassing," concluded Jaynes. "I don't care if you're a sophomore, a junior or a senior. It hurts to lose. And it makes it embarrassing when the score is 55-0."

Nebraska's Black Shirts turned an 18-year-old sophomore's dream into an unforgettable night mare.

IM frat ratings upset

This week's fraternity division ratings undergo the biggest revision of the season. Three new entries and a new leader highlight the top five.

Phi Gamma Delta takes over the top spot after blasting Sigma Alpha Epsilon 40-6. Beta Theta Pi jumps into the number two spot after upsetting the previous top five leader, Phi Delta Theta.

The Phi Deltas sink to third, despite having beaten Phi Gamma Delta 19-18 earlier in the year. A pair of undefeated teams, Acacia and Delta Sigma Pi, occupy fourth and fifth spots.

Ag Men, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Delta Upsilon drop out of the ratings.

The only change to the dorm division ratings from last week is Abel V and Harper III trading places in the second and third positions.

Undefeated Hawks continue to lead the independent ratings. Pro Students slip past the Dirty Dozen into the number two spot this week after scoring 110 points in two games.
