

What You Should Know About Diamonds

*Diamonds Have Secrets
(and We Know Them All)*

If you were interested in a diamond and it costs considerably more than another of the same or greater weight, you would want to know why. By means of precision instruments in the only certified gem laboratory in Nebraska, you will find the reasons.

SARTOR HAMANN is one of the only firms in the United States employing 3 registered jewelers of the American Gem Society and one certified gemologist to expertly serve you. No one is allowed to show & sell you one of our beautiful diamonds unless they have earned this cherished title or are working toward it.

At Sartor Hamann
You need not pay more than

585.00	1 carat
395.00	3/4 carat
195.00	1/2 carat
99.00	1/3 carat
85.00	1/4 carat
65.00	1/5 carat

For a select Diamond compare before you buy.

Sartor Hamann

Serving Lincoln Since 1905
1129 'O' STREET

REGISTERED JEWELERS AMERICAN GEM SOCIETY

Thanksgiving menu

NEBRASKA 31, Oklahoma 21 . . . Kansas State coach Vince Gibson said anybody who thinks they can predict a winner in this game is "full of mud."

Well, now, Gibson may be correct. Afterall, he's the same person who said if a team was to go undefeated in the Big Eight last year they would have to win the national championship.

But nonetheless, my contract reads that I must predict a score. So there's the score (Nebraska 31, Oklahoma 21) and here is the reasoning for such a forecast.

Oklahoma's offense is better than it was last year when the Huskers scored a 28-21 win over the Sooners. But, on the other hand, Nebraska's defense is also better. Those two equalize each other and Oklahoma scores 21 points.

Nebraska's offense is better than last year . . . about three points a game better. That's where the Huskers get 31 points.

You know, Gibson may be correct. That prediction just may be "full of mud."

Remember last spring

As the Nebraska-Oklahoma game nears, I can't help but think about a conversation I had with a writer from Sports Illustrated last spring during football practice.

Sports Illustrated writer: "What does coach Devaney think will be the biggest problems if Nebraska is to win another national championship. Where does Nebraska have to find new people?"

Johnston: "Coach Devaney says that the biggest problem will be finding offensive tackles to replace all-American Bob Newton and Wally Winter. He's also concerned about finding a replacement for middle guard Ed Periard."

Sports Illustrated writer: "Well, that means Nebraska fans don't have to worry about having good offensive tackles or a middle guard."

Johnston: "What are you talking about?"

Sports Illustrated writer: "I've always felt that if Devaney is worried about something, then Nebraska fans shouldn't worry. If Devaney knows what the problem is he'll take care of it."

Look what's happened since that conversation last spring. Tackles Daryl White and Carl Johnson have been doing an outstanding job for the Cornhuskers. Middle guard Rich Glover, an unknown in the Husker camp before this fall, is following the trend of great middle guards at Nebraska and is being considered as an All-American.

Just how does that relate to the Nebraska-Oklahoma game? Well, Devaney is worried about the Wishbone. Enough said.

So they say:

Don Bryant, Nebraska sports information director: "The key to stopping Oklahoma is to stop their passing attack and force them into their running game."

Bob Devaney, when asked to reveal the Cornhuskers' favorite play: "Touchdown."

Joe Granato, Oklahoma coach who scouted the Cornhuskers' win over Kansas State: "The only thing I saw about Nebraska that wasn't the greatest was their cheerleaders."

HOSPE'S

AND

BIG RED

have one thing
in common

They're both

1.

1140 "O"

432-4421