for drop and add, registration and applications. The mandatory fee--now activities-services fee--amounts to $51.50 per semester for student services such as the Nebraska Union, The Daily Nebraskan and Health Center.

The Council also will recommend to the chancellor that one organization or office be assigned the responsibility for publishing the Campus Handbook, which includes information on student payments.

The responsibility has moved from office to office for many years, resulting in difficulty in obtaining complete accurate information, according to several Council members.

The student fees committee is continuing to study the status of the $14.50 bond debt retirement fee students currently pay under mandatory student fees. The Council deferred action on several recommendations regarding the debt retirement fee.

The Council will meet in executive session next Thursday to discuss CSL actions with Interim Chancellor C. Peter Magrath. The Council won't meet after that until Jan. 25.
