Unicam committee advances fees bill

The Legislature's Education Committee voted 5-2 Monday to advance Sen. Gerald Stromer's bill prohibiting mandatory student fees at the NU and state colleges.

An amendment was attached, however, keeping mandatory fees to pay off bonded indebtedness of dormitories, University Health Center and the Nebraska Union.

Committee chairman Sen. Donald Elrod of Grand Island, said Monday's action came as a result of senators trying to "clean up bills in committee." He voted against the bill.

Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett said he voted for the bill to put it on the Legislature floor for full debate. Unless senators seek rapid action on the bill, it would be several weeks before it comes up for consideration on general file since over 100 bills are ahead of it.

"I'm not much for that bill in any way," Barnett said of LB 1271. "The Board of Regents should run the University."

Barnett urged Regents to take a stand for or against fee collections. Presently they are satisfying "hardly any" students on either side of the issue, he said.

Elrod described mandatory fees as "part of the package deal" students agree to, much like membership in organizations. He said he believed the bill was mostly aimed at student publications.

Committee members voting for advancing the bill were: Barnett, Stromer, Ellen Craft of North Platte, Duke Snyder and George Syas of Omaha.

Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield joined Elrod in voting against the bill. Lincoln Sen. William Swanson, absent when the vote was taken, unsuccessfully urged the committee to reconsider its action and kill the bill.
