

Senators return for final day action

Nebraska state senators return to the capitol Wednesday for the final day of the 1972 legislative session. Seventy-five bills are scheduled for final reading and at least one veto override attempt is possible.

Lawmakers adjourned last Wednesday with one day left out of the constitutionally set 60-day limit. The week-long recess was scheduled to process all bills set for final reading and provide a chance to override any vetoes by the governor.

All bills not passed when Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh gavels the session to sine die adjournment are automatically killed.

Seventy-three bills are scheduled to die by that method. All but two of those have failed to receive even first-round consideration by the whole Unicameral.

A total of 475 bills were introduced in the second session of the 82nd Nebraska Legislature bringing the two-year total to 1,517. Approximately 100 bills were carried over from the 1971 session into this year's session.

One of the most controversial bills sitting on general file and scheduled to die at adjournment is Kearney Sen. Gerald Stromer's LB 1271.

Known as the controversial student fees bill, it would have prohibited any university or college receiving any state funds to collect mandatory student fees.

Stromer said Tuesday there was not sufficient time in this session to push the bill through the Unicameral.

Stromer said the NU administration was "known for inaction," and he hoped the Board of Regents would take some action to "protect the individual student" by changing the fee collection policy.

If the regents do not take some action, Stromer anticipated a bill similar to LB 1271 would be introduced next year.

Several senators have recommended extending the session an extra day. Their contention is that 75 bills which must be read in full before they are voted on could cause senators to remain far into the night.

One bill set for final reading is the 1972-73 massive capital construction package. It provides over $10 million in construction funds for the University of Nebraska.

The largest portion, $5.22 million, has been designated for the Lincoln campuses. Of that, $3.32 million is for an addition to Love Memorial library. A new home economics building receives $1.485 million in state funds.

Remodeling planned for Ferguson Hall receives $190,000; planning for new life sciences and College of Law buildings get $100,000 each; and $25,000 is allotted for the planning of a new veterinary science building.

UNO would receive $3.85 million in funds. The bulk of that, $3.5 million, would be toward a new classroom building. The campus would also get $250,000 for land acquisition and $100,000 for planning a new library.

The Medical Center stands to receive nearly $1 million in state funds. A School of Nursing is set to get $700,000. The center would also receive $200,000 for land acquisition and $25,000 for planning an out-patient clinic.

The final $75,000 appropriated in the bill would be for University-wide renovation and remodeling.

It is not anticipated the bill will receive any serious opposition.

Earlier in the session, senators narrowly turned down a bill adding over $3 million for the actual construction of a new College of Law building.

HE HAD THE VISION...
WE HAVE THE WAY.

When the Paulists were founded in 1858 by Isaac Hecker, they were the first religious Community of priests established in North America by an American and for Americans.

Father Hecker, who was a century ahead of his time, wanted Paulists to be free of compulsory activities so they could be flexible enough to meet the needs of the Church in every age as they arose.

Today's Paulist can be as involved as he wants to be. He is given the freedom to use his own talents to do his own thing. He may be a parish priest, an educator or a press, radio or television personality.

Father Hecker discovered the value of communications early. With his monthly publications and pamphlets, he laid the foundation for the Paulist/Newman Press, the country's largest publisher and distributor of Catholic literature.

Today, Father Hecker's vision and foresight have led to the establishment of Paulist radio, television and film centers on a scale that perhaps, not even he dreamed of.

But then, he had the vision. He showed us the way.
