student fees . . .

one representative each, from student health, ASUN, the faculty liaison committee, and, hopefully, a representative from the city's hospitals, according to ASUN second vice-president Michelle Gagne.

The ASUN proposal suggests that its senate be held ultimately responsible for the use and accountability of funds. In addition, guidelines will be provided for groups requesting allocations from the Senate Budget Committee (SBC).

The SBC would be responsible to the senate for the implementation of policy, as well as for updating and recommending changes to it. That agency would also be responsible for providing public notice of budget filing deadlines and conducting public hearings on fund requests.

All agencies, including those presently funded, would be responsible for preparation and submission of budgets to the SBC. Failure to comply with procedures could result in suspension of remaining funds.

The SBC would consist of the speaker pro tem of the ASUN senate, two senators elected by the senate, and two senators appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. In addition, the proposal calls for the following individuals to serve in an advisory, non-voting capacity: the coordinator of student activities, the vice chancellor of student affairs, and the comptroller.

The proposal also calls for formation of a University Funding Review Board (UFRB) consisting of three faculty members appointed by the Faculty Senate and three administration members appointed by the chancellor.

The primary purpose of that Board would be to review all general budgetary allocations which were recommended by the SBC and passed by the senate. The UFRB may veto allocations to any agency, activity, or organization and make recommendations as to the amount of money each group should receive. If vetoed, the budget will return to the senate which may either adopt it according to UFRB recommendations, or overrule the veto by a two-thirds vote of the entire membership.

The UFRB may then appeal an overruled veto to the Chancellor, who would make the final decision.

As proposed, any activity or agency is eligible to request funds from the SBC. The SBC would review each case and make a decision based on these criteria:

- breadth of the appeal of the program to UNL students;
- contribution of the program to the total educational process;
- purpose for which the funds would be used;
- alternative sources of revenue and actions taken by requesting activities to generate funds from other sources.

In addition, the proposal outlines procedures for accountability of funds, maintenance of records, accessibility of records, and advertising of sponsored activities.
