Your first tampon should be a Kotex tampon.

Because only Kotex tampons have soft, rounded ends... gentle insertion guides instead of two bulky tubes... and more protection than the leading brand. But the only way to be convinced is to let a Kotex tampon be your first one

If it wasn't, here's a second chance.

Ag students express skepticism on change

by Shelly Kalkowski

"Unnecessary."
"I don't know anything about it."

These reactions were common among students in the College of Agriculture when they were questioned concerning LB 149, a proposal to establish a separate agricultural center.

On the positive side, students viewed the proposal as a possible source of pride and better communications.

Dennis Krei, an agricultural engineering junior, said he believes the proposed change could make the college more personal.

"It would be easier to see and talk with the administrators," Krei said. "You wouldn't have to go through committees."

Although he said the proposal could have some positive effects, Krei said the new administration would be "a duplication and a waster of money."

Bernie Wirth, a former ASUN senator, said he thought East Campus students had suffered neglect and discrimination.

"I don't know if it (LB 149) will help mechanics, but it might help East Campus students psychologically," Wirth said.

Entomology graduate student Bob Boer said, "if it changes registration policies and quality of instruction, I would be for it."

But more students expressed the same thoughts as Rich Schlueter, a junior majoring in natural resources.

"Right now, there's no administrative hassle for the students," Schlueter said. "Looks like the change could cause a lot of hassles for students, especially if they need to take classes on the city campus."

Larry Voegler, a senior who majors in agricultural business, said he wonders if the administrative change will result in a new business program for East Campus.

ASUN senator Bruce Cadwallader said he believes a separate unit would create more bureaucratic red tape.

When asked what he thought of the Zumberge Plan, a proposal that would create a vice-chancellor of agricultural research and extension, ASUN senator George Rhodes said he believes it is a reasonable compromise.

"Agriculture, being the biggest industry in the state, should have more prestige and more effective legislative liaison," Rhodes said.

When questioned about the Zumberge Plan, Cadwallader said, "We have a lot of research and extension activities spread throughout the College of Agriculture. What we need is someone to direct them."

Cadwallader added that he believes the Zumberge Plan also could instill more pride among College of Agriculture students.
