Weather stalls Environment talks

The weather apparently stalled the Environmental Information Series Wednesday evening.

After apologies from Bill Freudenburg, chairman of the ASUN Environmental Task Force, the crowd that had braved the cold left the Nebraska Union.

Fern Farris was to speak on chemicals and preservatives in food. She was to substitute for Jan Postlewait, the speaker originally scheduled.

According to Freudenburg, Postlewait is the editor of Greenpower magazine and a member of the organization with the same name. The group is involved in organic gardening and natural foods.

The speeches in the Environmental Information Series are sponsored jointly by the ASUN Environmental Task Force and the Union Talks and Topics Committee. William Wayne, UNL geology professor, will speak next Wednesday on the hydrologic cycle.
