

Tigers trounce Husker cagers

COLUMBIA, Mo.—Nebraska's basketball season ended on a sour note Saturday afternoon, as the Cornhuskers were defeated by Missouri 86-70 at Hearnes Fieldhouse in Columbia.

Although the Huskers dropped their 17th game of the year, they didn't go down without a fight—a fist fight, that is.

With 16:38 left in the game, sophomore Don Jackson of Nebraska and Missouri all-American center John Brown, exchanged blows after Jackson scored a turnaround jumper over Brown's outstretched arms.

The brief fight brought a quick exit from the game for both players and put a damper on "John Brown Day", being held to honor the school's all-time leading scorer.

Coach Norm Stewart's 12th-ranked Missouri team jumped to a quick 10-0 lead, which accurately forecast the outcome of the game, although Nebraska was able to close the margin to 33-32 late in the first half.

After taking a 43-36 halftime lead, the Tigers broke open the game in the second half behind the shooting of reserve Gary Link, who finished with a career high of 21 points, and guards Mike Jeffries and Al Eberhard, who finished with 18 and 17 points respectively.

Coach Joe Cipriano's youthful Huskers were led in scoring by freshman guard Ricky Marsh's 22 points, sophomore Kent Reckewey's 12 and freshman Jerry Fort's 10.

Headed for its second straight National Invitational Tournament in New York next week, the Tigers used a pressure defense against the young Nebraska team forcing numerous Cornhusker turnovers.

Missouri upped its season record to 21-5 and 9-5 in the Big Eight Conference, while the Huskers finished 4-10 in the league, with nine wins overall. The teams combined for 41 turnovers and 40 fouls.

The game was the last of the season for Nebraska, and also was the final game as Huskers for seniors Cal Christline from Sterling and Tony Riehl of Louisville, Ky.

Missouri's John Brown . . . fisticuffs dampened John Brown Day.

Huskers grab 8th in NCAA indoors

Big Eight indoor track champion Nebraska scored eight points in the ninth NCAA Track and Field Championships Saturday in Detroit to finish in a five-way tie for eight place.

Coach Frank Sevigne's Cornhuskers, who won the conference crown in Kansas City last week, were tied for eighth by teams from Middle Tennessee, Michigan, Tennessee and Wisconsin Universities.

Husker Roger Chadwick gave Nebraska its highest place in the meet, when he finished second in the 880-yard run. Chadwick, who won the Big Eight 880 title a week ago, posted a 1:53 time, second to Ken Schappert of Villanova who had a 1:50.4.

The Huskers next-best finish was a third place in the two-mile relay by Jeff Wisemiller, Larry Climato, Jim Hawkins and Chadwick. They were timed in 7:32.1. Wisemiller opened with a 1:54.7 half, followed by Climato (1:53.9), Chadwick (1:51.8) and Hawkins (1:51.7).

Nebraska's two-mile quartet followed winning Fordham, (7:31.5) and second place Tennessee (7:31.6).

Nebraska finished fifth in the distance medley behind Manhattan, which set a world record in the event. The Manhattan team was timed in 9:43.8 which bettered the mark of 9:44.6 set by Kansas State in 1967.

Running for the Huskers in the medley were Larry Gnapp (1:54.1 half mile), Dan Speck (3:01.8 three-quarters mile), Lynn Hall (4:07.4 mile) and Steadman Mason (50.3 quarter mile).

Held in Cobo Arena, the meet featured winning performances by several men who competed in last summer's Olympic games.

Rod Milburn of Southern University, who won a gold medal at the Munich games, won the 60-yard high hurdles, tying the 6.9 second record.

Dave Wottle, Olympic gold medalist from Bowling Green University, won the mile championship with a time of 4:03.4 in the final event of the meet.

Another Olympic gold medalist, Gerald Tinker of Kent State, won the 60-yard dash in :06.0.

Kansas University, which finished second to Nebraska in the Big Eight Indoor Championships, also finished second in the NCAA meet. The Jayhawks scored 12 points, which tied Kent State and Texas-El Paso, but they were 6 points behind winning Manhattan.

Two other Cornhuskers competed in open events but failed to score. They were Ron Childs and Bob Unger. Childs placed seventh in the long jump with a leap of 25-1/2 feet and Unger ran ninth in the two-mile run.

new members on four of the five advisory boards. The College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Agriculture, the College of Home Economics and Teachers College will be affected. The College of Business Administration holds its advisory board election at another time.

Phil Lamb, president of the Agriculture Advisory Board, said the major purpose for the board is "providing student input into academic decisions at the college level".

According to Lamb, activities of this year's board include providing student views in debate on LB149, which calls for a separate NU College of Agriculture, extending the hours of operation of the East Campus calculating room and reviewing the curriculum of the College of Agriculture.

"The major problem facing the board," said Lamb, "is lack of student input."

Robert Egbert, dean of Teachers College, said he sees the advisory board as having three kinds of roles.

"We have asked our board for explicit advice. The board has volunteered advice and, at our request, they have served on special committees such as curriculum and evaluation," he said.

According to Egbert, one of the board's problems was communication.

"Communication between Teachers College's teachers and students has not been as effective as it could be," he said.

Melvin George, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences said he sees the purpose of the advisory board as "advising the dean's office as to problems that students are worried about."

Hazel Anthony, dean of the College of Home Economics, said the advisory board is "a great liaison between faculty and students. I am very satisfied with this year's board."
