The world's second best reproduction system.

Read about the basis of this outrageous claim: EPI's Linear Sound.

Speaker designers have been talking about Linear Sound for years. But until EPI came along, nobody had it.

So what do we mean by "Linear Sound"?

It's what the sound of an EPI speaker looks like on a frequency response graph: a practically straight line. So: Linear Sound.

On the bass end, down as low as 22 cycles, there's exactly the amount of bass that was recorded. With no artificial boosting to impress the innocent.

On the treble end, up as high as 20,000 cycles, EPI speakers deliver overtones that, on ordinary speakers, just fade out.

So what you end up with is a reproduced sound that sounds just like the original sound. With no artificial coloring added. And nothing taken out.

Linear Sound. It comes out of eight fantastic speakers, from $55 to $1000, made by Epicure Products Inc., One Charles St. Newburyport, Mass. 01950.
