Summer school attracts 13,000

The enrollment of the first five-week session will be about 6,900, according to Alan Seagren, director of summer sessions. He said about 4,900 students would attend classes during the second five-week session beginning July 16. Seagren said more than 850 students registered for the new pre-summer school session. An additional 250 students enrolled in a special 8-week session. Both sessions began May 21. Seagren said that due to budget cuts, some sections were dropped from courses with multiple sections. Also courses with traditional low summer demand were dropped, he said. Earlier Seagren said the cut was made from the money budgeted for summer school last year when re-enrollment was higher. He said summer enrollment has dropped considerably for the last two years.

Phil Sienna (right), director of intramurals, discusses recreation possibilities Thursday at a recreation equipment display on the mall north of the Union.

Recreation plans

Vine St. will be closed over the lunch hour, and canoe and sailboat rentals will be made from 1 to 4:30 p.m. only, Monday through Friday.

Besides the canoes and sailboats, the recreation department has a variety of equipment available to students, faculty and staff.

Some equipment can be checked out with a university identification card, while a small rental fee is charged for other equipment.

The equipment requiring an identification card includes basketballs, footballs, horseshoes, soccer balls, archery equipment, squash equipment, volleyball equipment, paddleball equipment, softball equipment, tug of war ropes and equipment for sacket.

Bicycles, tandem bicycles, Coleman stoves, Coleman coolers, golf clubs, packs, tents, sleeping bags, rods and reels, canoes and sailboats can be rented.

The recreation department will provide picnic games for any organization or individuals who want the equipment.

Stellar said tents and sleeping bags are sometimes difficult to get for weekend outings. The recreation department has 24 sleeping bags and 27 tents, but by Friday afternoon they usually are all checked out, he said. Stellar suggested picking up equipment Friday morning.

For summer activities two outdoor recreation areas are available on the downtown campus, Stellar said.

The lighted area east of Cather-Pound between Vine and R streets includes eight tennis courts, outdoor handball or paddleball courts and a general playing field. The lighted area adjacent to Harper-Schramm-Smith includes 10 tennis courts three artificial turf putting greens and a general play area.

The Abel Sandoz swimming pool will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 11 p.m. everyday. Summer session season tickets can be purchased at Abel Hall for $2.50. Single admission is 25 cents.

The recreation department is offering swimming and scuba diving classes. The beginning swimming lessons are $5 and the scuba class costs $46.95 for a five-week course.

The recreation department also sells Nebraska hunting and fishing licenses Stellar said, and does not charge an issuing fee for the licenses.

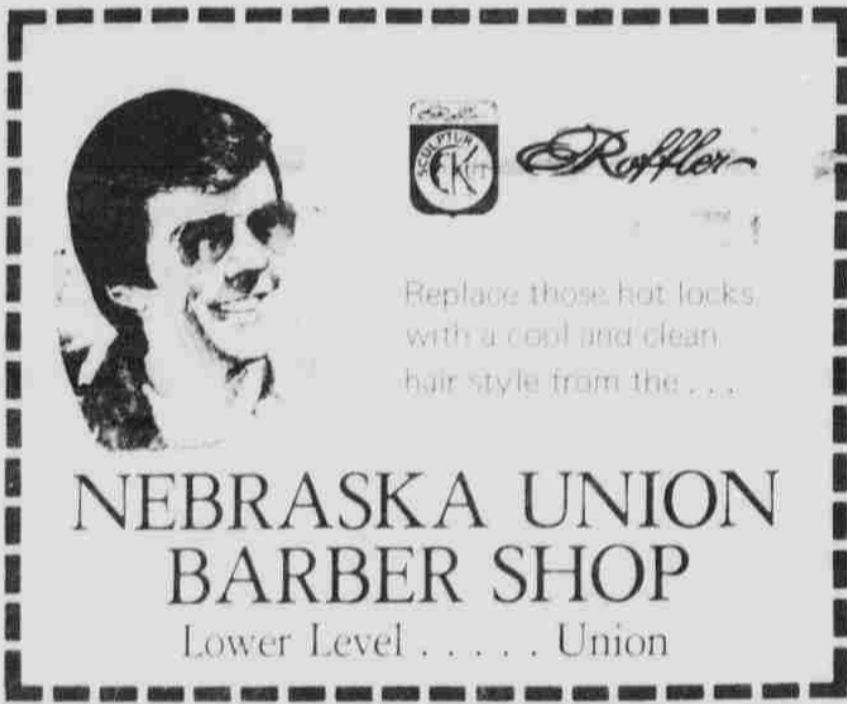

He also said there is a reading area at the recreation office with magazines and other information from the game commission.

Alumni reunion

The deadline is June 13 for University of Nebraska alumni to make reservations to attend the annual NU Alumni Reunion Weekend June 15, 16, and 17.

Jack Miller, executive vice president for alumni affairs, said registration will begin at 3 p.m. June 15 in the Union. There will be a mixer at the Villager Motel in the evening.

Activities on June 16 include campus tours, question and answer program, reunion luncheons and an outdoor barbecue. The reunion ends June 17 with an Alumni Brunch.
