

Aid allocations know in July

University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) students who have applied for financial aid during the 1973-74 academic year will be notified of their allocations in early July.

This includes various kinds of financial aid such as loans, grants, scholarships, and work-study, according to Jack Ritchie, acting director of financial aids and scholarships.

Applications are available for the new federal Basic Opportunity Grants (BOG) which are designed to assist eligible students who want to begin their education beyond high school.

Ritchie said students could get the form from the Scholarship and Financial Aids office in Rm. 112 Administration.

The BOG program is designed to provide post-secondary educational opportunities to those who otherwise would not be able to continue their education due to financial need.

Under the program, an eligible student could receive a maximum of $1400 or one-half the cost of attending a post-secondary institution whichever is less. The amount which parents could provide would be subtracted from the above figure.

Application forms for BOG are designed to determine the amount which parents can contribute. Completed forms should be mailed to the address indicated on the application. After evaluation, the student will receive a voucher which will show the amount of money which the parents should provide. The voucher should be taken to the institution of the student's choice where it will be processed to determine the final amount of the BOG grant.

Ritchie said that all beginning freshmen are encouraged to make application for the grants. There is no fee for making an application.

All incoming freshmen at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will receive the BOG grant applications automatically.
