

Photo by Mary Emanuel

The Colonial dining room will be changed into a buffet-style cafeteria.

Facelift for Union to cost $150,000

The Union will get a facelift, if the Board of Regents okays the use of about $150,000 in Union reserves. The money would pay for renovation and new equipment.

If approved, the Colonial dining room would be changed into a buffet-style cafeteria, according to Al Bennett, director of the Union. He said the change would increase speed and ease of service.

The Union was built in three stages with the first stage completed in 1938, the second in 1959 and the third in 1966. "This is the first attempt to modernize the 1938 section of the building," Bennett said.

The original 1938 tables still are used in the Colonial room, he said, and they do not match the chairs. The tables will be replaced. He also said the dining area would be enlarged.

Some of the $150,000 would go to finish the 1969 section of the building. This would include lighting systems, furniture and fixtures for the Harvest room, he said. The game area in the lower level will get new carpet, drapes and some new equipment.

Changes will be made in rm. 221 to provide a check-cashing service, Bennett said, and there will be minor work in other rooms.

Bennett said that only one or two rooms would be closed at a time because of a service commitment to students. He said some work will be done on weekends and would not disrupt Union services.

Work on the Colonial room would begin about Christmas break, he said, and would take six to ten weeks to complete.

During this time rooms 242 and 243 would be used as an alternate eating place.

Reserve funds would also purchase office equipment to replace borrowed equipment brought into the building from other departments when student affairs programs moved into the building after the Nebraska Foundation moved to the Systems Building.

Bennett also said the Union is developing a long-range plan to bring lighting, air handling and plumbing to current standards in the 1938 part of the building. Construction on these long-range goals would not begin before next July and would take about three years to complete.

Total cost of the long-range work would be about $250,000 with renovation of the Crib as one of the early priorities, he said.

Board to decide alcohol, visitation

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents will meet Saturday, June 23, at 10 a.m. in the University Systems Building at 3835 Holdrege.

Regents will consider recommendations for the 1973-74 University budget, including recommended salary adjustments for faculty and staff.

The Board also will decide whether alcohol will be permitted on campus at UNL and whether coed visitation can be expanded from 42 hours to 64 hours a week.

The Board also is expected to receive guidelines from the Medical Center to implement the policy on abortions approved at a special meeting of the Regents on June 7.

An UNL proposal on student fee policy was postponed until the July meeting to incorporate UNO and Medical Center student fee proposals.

Unidentified man assaults coed in Pound Hall

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln coed was assaulted in her dormitory room around 6 p.m. June 11, according to Gail Gade, chief of campus security.

Gade said the incident occurred on the tenth floor of Pound Hall when the girl returned to her room and found a man going through her purse.

The man struck the girl on the head and sexually assaulted her before fleeing with $3 or $4, according to police reports. The girl was treated at student health and released.

Police are looking for a white male, 18- or 19-years-old, about 5-foot-7, 160 to 170 pounds with medium-length brown hair.

In other police action last week, Ted Preifer, director of registration and records, reported that a personal card on Johnny Carson was missing from the personal card file. Campus Security questioned department members, according to police reports.

Zumberge suggests 4.5% wage increase

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chancellor James Zumberge will recommend a four and one-half per cent average salary increase for faculty members when he presents the UNL 1973-74 operating budget to the Board of Regents Saturday.

Zumberge said he allocated a three and one-half per cent salary increase in each area, while selected areas, such as journalism, art, music, agriculture, home economics, economics and accounting will receive salary increases as high as 10 to 12 per cent.

Zumberge said that in a recent survey a professor in the UNL School of Journalism received $4,000 less than the average journalism professor in the Big Ten.

The Regents had requested salary increases of five and one-half per cent, but Gov. J.J. Exon's budget only allowed for three and one-half per cent increase.

Zumberge used money from his $576,147 discretionary fund for the salary increases above three and one-half per cent, which brought the average salary increase to four and one-half per cent.

The 1973-74 UNL budget holds the line on expenses and eliminates unfilled faculty positions. Income for the 1973-74 fiscal year is anticipated at $27.6 million, which includes a $590,000 increase in state appropriations and increased tuition revenue. Expected expenses totaled $28.6 million, so Zumberge cut $302,000 by removing a three per cent allowance for inflation and ordered campus-wide cuts of $648,000.

During the 1972-73 fiscal year there was a $950,000 deficit caused by a drop in enrollment causing less tuition income. The deficit was made up by ordering a freeze in hiring and expense accounts for supplies.

A similar deficit would be created in the new fiscal year, since the freeze did not erase unfilled faculty positions, which Zumberge now is doing.

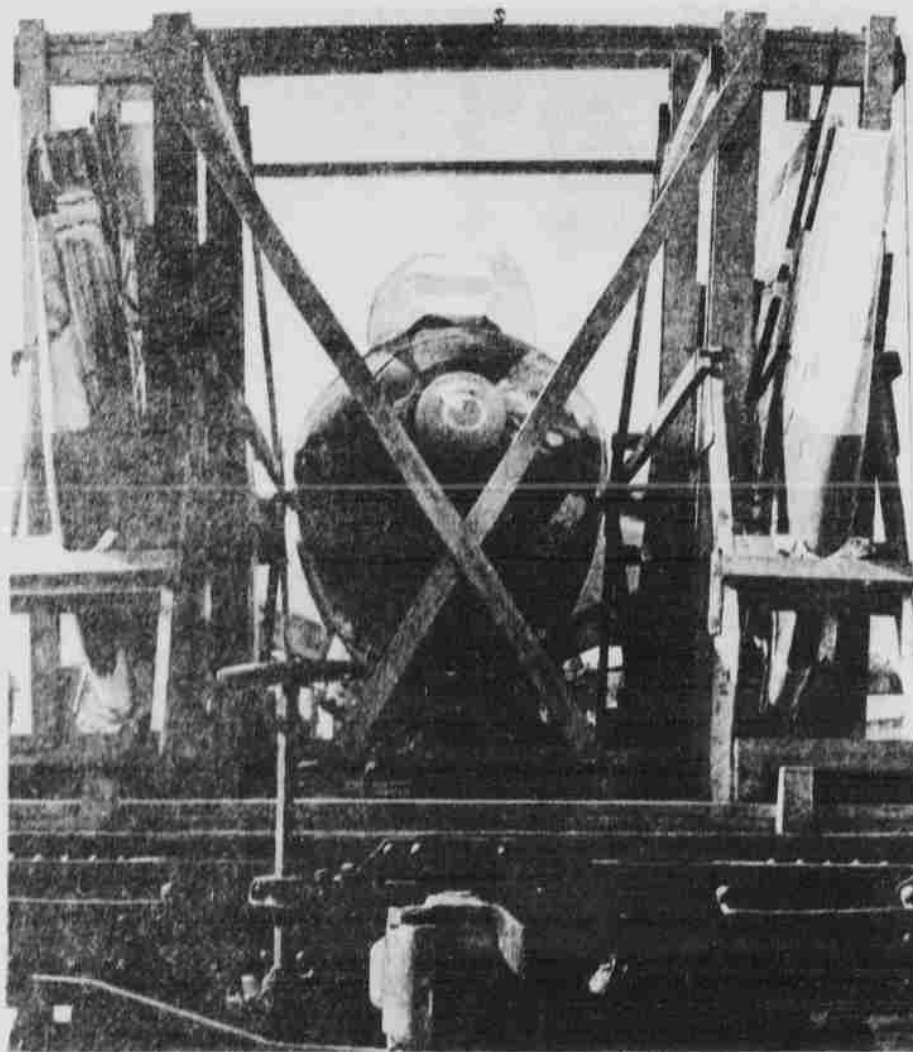

Photo by Mary Emanuel

Corp, city swap planes

A Marine Corp F4 Corsair sat on railroad siding east of Sandoz Hall before being transported to Pioneer Park last Friday.

The Marine Corp traded Lincoln the Corsair for a city-owned F9 Cougar, which will be sent to the Marine Corp Museum.

The Corsair, with the wings removed, was transported from an air force depot in Arizona. The plane was made in the '50s and is obsolete now, according to Marine Capt. Carl Ackerman.

Weekly Calendar

- Tuesday, June 19
No events scheduled.
- Wednesday, June 20
John Biggs Consort concert, 7:30 p.m., Kimball.
- Thursday, June 21
John Biggs Consort workshop, 11 a.m., Kimball.
Educational Administrators' Roundtable, 11:45 a.m., Union.
All-State music students recital, 7:30 p.m., Kimball.
- Friday, June 22
Final date for submitting drops for courses with labs.
Final date for filing applications for candidacy for Master's degrees to be conferred in August.
All-State music students recital, 7:30 p.m., Kimball.
- Saturday, June 23
No events scheduled.

- Sunday, June 24
All-State orchestra, choruses and soloists, "A Willa Cather Concert," 3 p.m., Kimball.
- Monday, June 25
Conference on Teacher Education, "Issues in Teacher Education," 8 a.m., Nebraska Center.
Textbookmen's exhibit, 12-4 p.m., Union.
Elementary Education: Know Your Department—"Directions and Trends," 1 p.m., Love.
Summer film series, Little Caesar, 7 p.m., Union.
- Tuesday, June 26
All-State band and chorus concert, 7:30 p.m., Kimball.
- Tuesday, June 26
Textbookmen's exhibit, 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Union.
Conference on Teacher Education "Models in Teacher Education," 9 a.m., Nebraska Center.
All-State final concert, 7:30 p.m., Sculpture Garden.