Recreation to fit needs

"If a guy wants something, he can come in and talk about it and we'll see what we can arrange," said Dan Steller, recreation director.

In an attempt to provide recreation to fit different group needs, the department is encouraging people to use recreation facilities, rather than scheduling special events.

Recreation tennis courts are open daily, however, from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., playing time is limited to one hour and players must present a University identification card. Guests are permitted.

The lighted areas east of Cather-Pound between Vine and R Streets includes eight tennis courts, outdoor handball or paddleball courts and a general playing field. The lighted area adjacent to Harper-Schramm-Smith includes 10 tennis courts, three artificial turf putting greens and a general play area.

The Abel-Sandoz swimming pool is open from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 11 p.m. daily. Admission is 25 cents or $2.50 for season tickets.

Equipment available to students, faculty and staff free of charge includes basketballs, footballs, horseshoes, soccer balls, archery equipment, squash equipment, volleyballs, paddleballs and softball equipment.

Bicycles, tandem bicycles, Coleman stoves and coolers, golf clubs, packs, tents, sleeping bags, rods and reels, canoes and sailboats can be rented.

The recreation department also sells Nebraska hunting and fishing licenses, Steller said, and does not charge an issuing fee.

The office at 1740 Vine St. is closed over the noon hour. Canoe and sailboat rentals are made from 1 to 4:30 p.m. only, Monday through Friday.

UNL students receive less aid because of $754,954 cut

Because of a $754,954 cut in federal funds for financial aid, many University of Nebraska-Lincoln students will not receive as much aid as anticipated or no aid at all during the 1973-74 academic year.

Jack Ritchie, director of scholarships and financial aids, said that letters indicating financial assistance are being mailed this week to students who applied by the deadline. The deadline for incoming freshmen was February 15 and for upperclassmen March 1, 1973.

Ritchie estimated that 1,200 students who applied on time and 600 students who applied after the deadline will receive no financial assistance.

As in previous years, financial aid is being allocated on the basis of need with those having the greatest need being served first, he said. Because of the reduction in federal funds, those with a financial need of $1,400 or less will not receive any assistance this year. Financial need is based on family resources.

Alternative sources of funds for students who are not scheduled to receive aid this year are guaranteed loans or part-time employment. The office of scholarships and financial aids is coordinating both on-campus and off-campus employment opportunities for students, Ritchie said.

In addition, the University is attempting to secure additional funds from the federal and state governments to offset the reduction of funds.

Today at 11:00 a.m., the People to People Singers will have a concert sponsored by the Baptist Campus Ministry near the Broyhill fountain.

There will be a Free Spirit Concert tonight at 9:30 p.m. at the Cather-Pound lounge. Admission is free.

Increased interest in study abroad

More than 15 University of Nebraska-Lincoln students will go abroad this year to continue their studies and many more would do so if funds were available, according to chancellor James H. Zumberge.

During the past 10 years, there has been increasing interest among young people in continuing their education overseas, he said.

"I view this as a healthy sign because we are inextricably linked in the world community. Each day, our life style, our earnings, our health, and our political decisions become more interdependent.

"The preparation of citizenry at the University must provide for life in a global context. That is, not only do we need to teach about foreign systems of education, economics, politics etc., but we must provide practical experience in foreign cultures for our students to bridge the gap between factual knowledge and international understanding. Without such experience our students will lack the proper background for future job opportunities as well as pleasure," Zumberge said.

"The University is committed to helping interested young students find opportunities to continue their education overseas. It is my firm conviction that our very survival is dependent upon the development of creative attitudes towards diversity, and renewed efforts to expand international education will play a crucial role in the creation of such attitudes," he said.
