

Economics aids Europe's unity

The importance of the European Economic Community (EEC), learning about different techniques used in teaching languages and an eyewitness description of post World War II Germany were discussed Thursday by H. Wolfgang Schumann, consul general in Chicago for the Federal Republic of Germany.

Schumann said that the EEC could lead to a United States of Europe. The countries in EEC are West Germany, England, France, Italy, Belgium, Denmark, Switzerland, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, he said.

He said EEC could help American exports enormously by increasing imports from the United States into Europe.

He also discussed why teaching German varied between states in his country.

"Some states have a population with a significant number of German settlers, which makes it easier for students coming from a German background to grasp the language," he said.

These students only need to "brush up" on the language, he said.

Schumann described Wisconsin as being a state with a large number of German settlers, while Nebraska had few.

This means more elementary teaching methods must be used in teaching German at UNL than in a Wisconsin area college, he said.

While speaking to UNL's Department of Modern Languages, Schumann told about his experiences following World War II.

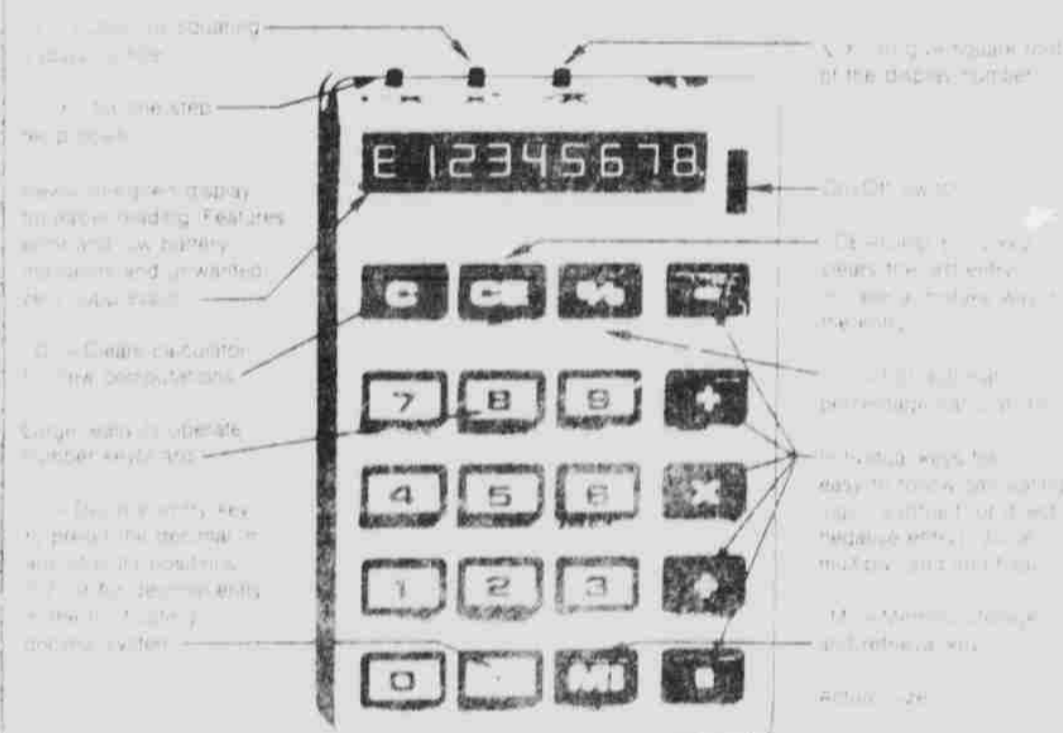

Schumann said that between 1945-48 Germany's economy was in a turmoil and that the threat of starvation faced many persons.

"I can remember when American cigarettes were thought of as currency. I also remember a young German boy who traded 10 car tires for 50 pounds of butter," he said.
