

Fee board eligibility restricted by ASUN

The ASUN senate Wednesday approved 18-2 the establishment of a committee to interview applicants for the Program and Facilities Fee Allocation Board.

Three senators abstained from voting.

Although every UNL student is technically a member of ASUN, the senate approved as part of the interviewing committee guidelines a motion by Sen. George Rhodes to restrict ASUN representation on the allocations board to ASUN senators, executives and standing committee chairpersons.

Rhodes' original motion would have restricted representation to senators and executives. An amendment by Sen. Karen Martinson to include standing committee chairpersons passed 16-6, with three abstentions.

Starting next year, the Allocations Board will control all fee allocations to student groups. Because of the board's zero base budget concept, these groups will be forced to start from scratch each year in requesting funds.

The ASUN interviewing committee is to nominate five prospective board members for senate approval. One each will come from ASUN, Union Board, Publications Committee, University Health Center, and the Recreation and Intramurals Department.

Approved for the five-member interviewing committee were Senators Mark Molacek, Jim Macomber, George Rhodes, and Rob Christoffersen. ASUN executives Ann Henry, Mark Hoeger and Sue Obering said they have not decided yet which of them would serve as the fifth member.

Students eligible for positions on the Allocations Board must submit resumes to ASUN by 4 p.m. Friday, Henry said.

Paul Byerly, a member of the CSL subcommittee on student organizations, announced that persons seeking student-at-large memberships on the Allocation Board must submit letters of interest and resumes to CSL by Friday. Byerly, an associate professor of physics, is ASUN's faculty adviser.

In other action, ASUN First Vice President Mark Hoeger unanimously was approved as ASUN's representative on the RHA Visitation Committee.
