Big 10 named in suit

The Big 10 controversy over the conference's Rose Bowl representative reached the point of a lawsuit Tuesday as a Michigan student sought to overturn Sunday's vote to send Ohio State to Pasadena.

Michigan and the Buckeyes played to a 10-10 tie Saturday and ended their seasons deadlocked for the Big 10 title.

Conference athletic directors, in a secret telephone vote the next day, elected to send Ohio State to Pasadena on New Year's Day to face Southern Cal.

The lawsuit was filed Tuesday by a University of Michigan graduate student, representing himself, the University's students and Michigan taxpayers.

The suit named as defendants Big 10 commissioner Wayne Duke, the Big 10 and athletic directors of the conference schools. It seeks to have the procedure used to select Ohio State declared invalid because it violated due process of law.

Until two years ago, conference rules automatically provided that in the case of a tie for the league title, the team which had been to the Rose Bowl most recently would not get the bid.

A tie vote Sunday would have sent Michigan this year since the Buckeyes traveled to Pasadena last year. The vote reportedly was 6-4.

There was some speculation that an injury to Michigan starting quarterback Dennis Franklin Saturday might have been partially responsible for the decision to send Ohio State. Franklin suffered a broken collarbone late in the fourth quarter.

Intramural swim meet to surface next week

Entries for the intramural swimming and diving meet are due by tomorrow. The meet, which will run next Tuesday through Thursday, features 12 separate events.

Last year "we had many participants in our swimming meet, but I feel this year will be even better," men's intramural coordinator Phil Sienna said.

In addition to the swimming and diving meet, there is a basketball marathon now being played. "The basketball marathon is the only intramural activity in which a team may organize regardless of organizational affiliation," Sienna said.

Play in the marathon began Monday and will run through Dec. 7. The single elimination tournament is called a marathon because a team plays every weekday as long as it continues winning.

A basketball managers meeting for all Class A, B and C teams will be next Wednesday at a place and time to be announced later.

Sienna said he has been pleased with the first semester intramural activities. "Everything has run according to plan. I am particularly pleased with the results of the football program. It was exceptionally well officiated and supervised, which made for a smooth season," he said.

Events scheduled for the first month of next semester include basketball, paddle ball doubles and water polo.
