Although not all Oblates currently work among the materially poor, the young man who wishes to be a religious working among the poor would find the Oblates a good community to look into. There is considerable freedom of choice of apostolate, and the provincials are inclined to back a young man with qualifications for engaging in some new type of ministry.

you have to build
from the ground up

The Oblates are to befriend and respect as brothers the abandoned poor with their many faces—the weak, the unemployed, the illiterate, victims of alcohol and drugs, the sick, the marginal masses in the less developed countries, and immigrants and minority groups in all countries who are excluded from the benefits of development.
