

Local Elks get 1 minority applicant

Membership at Lincoln Elks Lodge 80 is now open to non-whites, but only one has applied for membership, according to Tom Yaussi, lodge chairman of the board.

Yaussi would not disclose the name or race of the applicant but said the person was not a black. The application will be voted on in February, he said.

Yaussi said the low percentage of non-whites in Lincoln compared with other cities accounts for the low numbers of non-white applicants. Members recruit new members, and most whites would normally bring in applications from other whites, he said.

According to Don Betts, lodge exalted ruler, there are no national figures on the number of non-whites who have joined the Elks. The "whites only" membership clause was dropped by an Elks national referendum in October.

The Lincoln lodge has lost 500 members in past years because of the discrimination clause, Yaussi said. The members belonged to other organizations opposed to barring non-whites from membership in the Elks, he said. Current membership in the Lincoln Elks lodge is about 3,000, he said.

Mortar Board

Applications for Mortar Board, due Jan. 28, are now available from the Union Program Office, ASUN, Panhellenic Council, Women's Resource Center, Student Affairs, from student assistants, house presidents and residence hall directors.

Y director sets goals

Working in the area of racism and making the YWCA a true fellowship for women from all backgrounds are two of Kathy Smith's main goals as new director of the Campus YWCA.

She replaced Jean Schafer who left the job last month.

Smith attended high school in Des Moines and was graduated from Iowa State University in 1972 with urban planning and sociology degrees. She also worked with the YWCA in Ames, Iowa.

Smith came to Lincoln for a year as a VISTA volunteer. She also worked with the Lincoln Action Program, helping senior citizens, before taking the YWCA job at UNL.

The number of women in YWCA is small, and the group is "very close knit" Smith said. She said she would like to see the group's size double this semester and include all kinds of women.

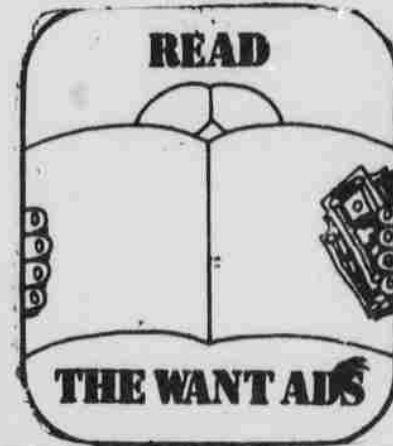

One of Smith's duties as director is program development, which includes arranging the group's activities and functions. She also handles finances and is a resource person and counselor.

A local YWCA project already set up includes a weekly international luncheon where an assortment of foreign foods is served. Some YWCA members also will attend the regional YWCA meeting February 8-10, at the University of Illinois, she said.

Smith said another of her goals is to offer programs relevant to the students' needs and to connect them with the community.

WEAR A ROSE ON JANUARY 22

1973 marked the end of one war for Americans and the beginning of another. On January 28, American ground troops ended hostilities in Indochina, and on August 15, all American air bombardments ceased. On January 22, the Supreme Court of the United States of America ruled that unborn infants have no legal rights for the first six months of their lives. Thus, a new war has begun. The struggle is now to save the lives of nameless and faceless human babies, just as the struggle was before to save the lives of nameless and faceless Vietnamese and Americans. The legally-sanctioned carnage will have continued for one year tomorrow Tuesday, January 22, 1974. Wearing a rose will show your concern for life and for a proposed constitutional amendment to rectify the decision of the Supreme Court. It will show your solidarity with the pro-life movement in its struggle to maintain the dignity of each individual,—be he old, mentally handicapped, or unborn. Wear a rose tomorrow.
