

The Law Bldg.'s future is undecided, but a UNL committee has recommended joining it to Architectural Hall.

Future uncertain for law building

UNL City Campus will be a lawless place in 1975 if things go as planned, according to Ron Wright, assistant director for Business and Finance at UNL.

The College of Law next spring plans to forsake its 61-year-old home at the southwest corner of the campus to locate in new $2.5 million quarters on East Campus.

What will happen with the old Law Bldg. hasn't been decided, Wright said. The Central Planning Committee recommends joining it with Architecture Hall to give the College of Architecture an additional 37,000 square feet of space.

However, Gov. J.J. Exon's budget recommendation, announced Tuesday, did not include the $250,000 construction budget request for remodeling the building.

"Maybe the governor feels the project is not of high enough priority," Harley Schrader, director of UNL's Physical Plant, said. "Since there were no dollars recommended for the project, we won't do anything for now."

Remodeling would include converting large rooms in the Law Bldg. to drafting rooms and classrooms.

The construction budget request was included in the University budget submitted to the Legislature for the 1974-1975 fiscal year. The request also included remodeling funds for the 1975-1976 fiscal year, he said.

"When they intend to allocate them (the remodeling funds), I don't know," he added.

Until then, the vacated law building probably will house administration offices, Schrader said.

Population conference

Students interested in population problems and policies may qualify for a scholarship to the World Population Conference to be held in Bucharest, Romania in August.
