

A jazz

Photos and story by Stewart Nelsen

When Preservation Hall trumpeter Joseph La Croix "DeDe" Pierre died in New Orleans last November, the birthplace of jazz turned out mourners by the hundreds to honor their native son in a final outpouring of grief for one of Dixieland's dwindling fraternity.

Stepping to the rhythm that the brass bands played, spectators

