

Student Services . .

To do this, Bader has submitted several proposals to the Faculty Senate and the Teaching Council. He said he also has discussed his proposals with UNL Chancellor James Zumberge. He has proposed increasing the number of minority faculty and staff, recruiting minority graduate students, increasing the size of the freshman class and improving minority education, he said.

"We must work aggressively and get more minority graduate students," Bader said. The next step would be to hire minority faculty, he added.

"Something is wrong when you do not have very many minority faculty members in the administration," Ramirez said.

Since 1970, Special Services has had four American Indian, three black and three Chicano counselors.

"This turnover has been troublesome to me," Bader said.

One of the problems may be because Special Services tries to treat minority affairs as an entity with three ethnic groups, he said.

Ramirez said that the pay may be another reason for the turnover. He also said minorities are in demand and counselors may leave the university because of better opportunities.

Oct. 21, 1914—"The Woman Suffrage meeting held at the Temple last night was a success. W. E. Hardy, who emphasized strongly the taxation problem, said 62,000 women in the United States were paying taxes and were not allowed to vote. Mr. Tibbet spoke on the relative knowledge of man and woman, saying that there was no reason for sexual distinction now since government was carried on with brain and not strength as in medieval times. J. L. Kennedy, of Omaha, the last speaker, spoke first on the amendment No. 306 which is to be voted on November 3rd. He spoke at length on the present condition of the polls, saying that one argument against woman suffrage was that voting places were not fit for a woman to go to. If this is the case, he thought that it was about time they were changed and that woman suffrage would do it. He said that it would also mean that women would become educated along political lines so they could talk politics intelligently and would help both man and wife as no man would want a dummy for a wife unless one himself. He said that the government was not of the people with the better half left out. The meeting closed with a very well rendered solo by Mrs. Perdrie."
