

BACKTIME

60 YEARS AGO

Nov. 6 1914—"When a student comes onto the campus through the southeast entrance he is immediately confronted by a bright light on one of the engineering buildings. Upon moving closer he will notice that the lights represent the letters "E.E." which signify that the building is that occupied by the electrical engineering department."

"There are three great institutions in America. The saloon, the church and the school. The saloon is bad and democratic. The church is good and undemocratic. The school is democratic and good."

"The sophomores at the University of California have determined that corn-cob pipes shall henceforth be the social emblem of the Freshmen."
