

Students plan boycott to support farm workers

By Jim Sajeiv

Boycotting grapes, lettuce and wine may not interest everyone, but a group of UNL students plan to make it their sole responsibility.

The Lincoln Boycott Committee, an organization sympathetic to the United Farm Workers' (UFW) attempts to improve wages and working and living conditions for its members, will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Women's Resource Center, Nebraska Union 116.

Only one week old, the group is already discussing how to organize a boycott of Gallo wine, head lettuce and California table grapes in Lincoln, committee member Monti Usasz said.

According to Usasz, Lincoln store owners will be asked to support the boycott by voluntarily removing Gallo wine, head lettuce and California table grapes from their shelves in the next two or three weeks.

Leaflets protesting the use of these three products will be distributed to customers outside stores which do not support the boycott, she said.

"We hope Lincoln stores will support us, but we know from experience that many stores won't do anything unless their sales are hurt," Usasz said.

Leaflets passed out

The total number of stores to be contacted is not yet known, according to Usasz. She said that will depend on how many members the Lincoln Boycott Committee has. There were 15 people at last week's meeting.

Omaha Boycott Committee representative Greg Herek said leaflets are already being passed out at some Omaha Hinky Dinky stores.

The Lincoln Boycott Committee is trying to build local boycott support by establishing Lincoln contacts, Usasz said. But, local interest may be a while in coming, she said.

"The boycott is a problem most people know nothing about, and it could take some time before Lincoln organizations can be convinced to back us," she said.

Usasz said the committee must first convince organization leaders to support the boycott, then wait for these organizations to meet and decide whether they, as a group, want to back the boycott.

Students 'very supportive'

Interested organizations will be asked to donate verbal and financial support to the Lincoln Boycott Committee, she said.

Usasz said she has heard about counter-advertising campaigns started by the Gallo Corporation denouncing UFW claims, but added that "the boycott must really be hurting them if they have to advertise against us."

An important goal of the Lincoln Boycott Committee is a UNL campus boycott of Gallo wines, Herek said.

"Students on campuses across the country have been very supportive of the boycott and we hope Lincoln students will be the same," he said.

Although Lincoln's response to the boycott won't be known for a while, UNL committee member Sue Eisenhower said,

"When consumers hear what farm workers are fighting for—not just better wages, but basic human rights—they'll support the boycott."
