Rock rolls wrong way

Review by Meg Greene

Dear Mick Jagger, Who do you guys think you're trying to fool? I'd like to think that I've weathered a lot of the changes you and your people have gone through. I grew up amongst "Flowers" and my formative years were spent at "Beggars Banquet" where I left with "Sticky Fingers".

College years have been one long "Exile on Main St." with lots of "Goats Head Soup" thrown in. But now this. "It's Only Rock and Roll." What are you guys trying to do? Set me back in a time warp?

"It's Only Rock and Roll." Well, that's all it is. All right, you devil's advocate. Explain that. There I was, so excited about a new Stones' album. Paradise revisited. Ha. More like Paradise lost. Your flashes of brilliance on this album are about as plentiful as satin shoes and cocaine eyes, and there isn't too much of that around here.

And what about the title cut? It sounds as if you impaled yourself upon the mike. Any minute I was waiting for it to fall over. But no, the album moves on. And on...and on.

Get the picture? But I did learn one thing. A good definition of infinity is listening to your album.

But I don't want to knock it entirely. It's good background music for a party: Muzak rock and roll.

Sincerely yours....

'Beatles' to be shown

"The Beatles: Away With Words", has been called a film, a concert and many other things.

A year in the making, this presentation is one of the largest and most sophisticated multi-media productions. It incorporates 26 slide projectors, 3 motion picture projectors, numerous special effects, full circle quadrophonic sound, a cinerama size screen, all operated by a computer.

The presentation is a chronicle of the Beatles, from their beginnings to their breakup.

"The Beatles: Away with Words" will be shown at Nebraska Wesleyan University's O'Donnell Auditorium tonight, Saturday and Sunday. There will be eight performances. Tonight and Saturday showings will be at 8, 10 p.m. and 12 midnight. Sunday showings are at 6 and 8 p.m. Tickets are $3.25 in advance and $3.75 the day of the show.
