

Five groups get funds

The Fee Allocations Board agreed to grant funds to five organizations Thursday night. One decision was delayed by the board.

The Rugby Club requested financial aid from the board. Club representative R.J. Neary said, "The players have been absorbing most of the costs so far." He asked that the board allocate money to the club to buy equipment and uniform for its two teams.

The board agreed to give the club $400 for equipment. They also approved $200 for uniforms to be allocated when the club matched that amount.

The Student Bar. Assoc. was given $500 toward their Minority Recruitment Program. The board stipulated, however, that the law college would be a better source of money in the future.

The Graduate Student Assoc. was appropriated $400 for the publication of their newsletter. The board said that the association cannot receive the money until they are recognized as a student organization.

The UNL Ski Club original request for $800 last week was cut to $150 by the board. The approved budget will be used by the club for publicity and to bring in a speaker.

Engineering College received $900 to sponsor a speaker during E-Week next April.

A final decision on Outreach's proposal will not be finalized until Sunday. Outreach, the UNL help line, had requested fees from the board last week in order to raise the salaries of their 24 employees. They also hoped to increase advertising. The board will act on the proposal after a question in the budget proposal has been clarified.
