

Road wins may boost basketball

Nebraska's upset win over Long Beach State in the Sun Devil Classic caused tremors of Top Twenty anticipation throughout this normally football-minded region.

However, the aftershocks died down the next evening when Arizona State blasted the Huskers 83-62.

Despite their Saturday night performance, the Huskers appear to be a pretty strong unit and a serious contender for the Big 8 crown.

They have the best backcourt combination in the Big 8, talent and depth at the forward positions and two capable centers.

Kansas, previously reputed to be invincible, has already lost twice. Kansas State is undefeated, but has played a weaker assortment of teams than Doane (seriously). Nationally-ranked Oklahoma is a one-man show with Alvin Adams anchoring a good, but not great, team.

Like last year, Nebraska will probably win close to all of its home games. Throw in a few road wins and Husker fans might yet have cause to check the basketball rankings on Tuesdays.

During the past few weeks, various All-American selections and individual awards were announced.

Nebraska garnered its usual share of All-American berths with David Humm and Marvin Crenshaw being the most frequently mentioned.

Congratulations are in order not only for those Huskers named, but also to Don Bryant, the sports information director at Nebraska.

On paper, Humm didn't exactly have a banner year, though his cool head and slick execution were invaluable to the team.

The fact that he was a consensus All-American is a credit to Bryant, whose job it is to keep the press informed by way of weekly sports releases.

Unfortunately, some selectors ignore even the press releases and vote solely on reputation.

One sportswriter tabbed Dave Shamblin on his All Big 8 team, which is peculiar since Shamblin was injured before the first game and has not seen action.

Although the St. Louis Cardinal offense has apparently stopped functioning, the rags to riches team might just have the material to make it to the Super Bowl.

Over in the AFC, Oakland has all the horses, including Marv Hubbard, who runs like one.

So, I'll say St. Louis vs. Oakland in the Super Bowl with Oakland winning.

On the local sports scene, two UNL youths have claimed to have set a world record in table tennis ball eating. Sophomores Bob Watts and Kevin O'Hanolan consumed a total of 47 table tennis balls between them Monday evening. They have issued an open challenge to anyone thinking they can better this mark.

Said Watts, who like O'Hanolan vomited the proof of his accomplishment shortly afterwards: "Everyone is good at something, and now Kevin and I have found a way to express ourselves."
