

Woes...

Barnhart also said that Benson, which is facing the worst crisis, could not be bailed out alone. "The Board is not about to piecemeal its money. We just can't do something for Benson without doing it for other schools."

He said that wouldn't necessarily have been the case except for the headlines in The Omaha World-Herald telling of the imminent death of the Benson High News.

Hanna listed possible solutions, such as a reduction of the number of issues, more advertising or lower quality of production. Barnhart and Hanna also said that one area advertising agent had offered to absorb the costs of production of a single paper for the entire district, with separate sections for each school, for advertising sales rights.

Editor Garrett of the News said he doubted the feasibility of such a project. "I don't think that person knows what he's getting into. The rates and percentage of advertising would have to be extremely high."

Horn said he remains optimistic about the future. "I still think the administration will see the light and not let our paper die after 46 years. Although I suppose I could go back to teaching sophomore English..."

"I'd like to help, but I'm just one person?"

Do you really think God will accept that?

Maybe you can't help others all by yourself. That's no excuse for doing nothing. Join with others at your local synagogue or church. There's plenty you can do together. Example: In Wisconsin, one religious group set up a halfway house to help women parolees fit themselves back into society. The God we worship expects us to seek out those who need our help, and to help them.
