"Elegance without Extravagance"

The Daily Nebraskan is sponsoring a contest for all you romanticists out there. Just place a message to your valentine in this Friday's Daily Nebraskan.

The most romantic message, as judged by the Daily Nebraskan Cupid, will allow its author to send a dozen red roses to anyone in Lincoln.

To further promote the cause of romance, the Daily Nebraskan has rolled back prices to just 6 cents a word. And our standard $1 minimum has been eliminated for this special offer.

Fill out the form below and bring it to the Daily Nebraskan office before 11:30 a.m. on Thursday. If you can't afford to run an ad, bring us your message anyway, you still can win. Daily Nebraskan staff members are not eligible.

If I am a winner, send my roses to:

Agriculture College to offer new minor

By Don McCabe

Beginning with the 1975 UNL summer sessions students may obtain a general agriculture minor.

The College of Agriculture faculty, after a recommendation by the Course of Study Committee, approved the proposal for the minor at its Jan. 17 meeting.

Ted Hartung, dean of the UNL College of Agriculture, said the minor was adopted because of the number of inquiries and the interest shown from students outside of agriculture.

Majors in business and journalism have shown the most interest, he said, as well as other Arts and Science majors.

Prominence and relevance

"The prominence of the whole world food picture and the relevance people see in agriculture today are the reasons there is the interest," Hartung said.

He said those who take the minor will not be agriculturists but will be able to use it as a reinforcement to their respective fields. The minor will provide a general knowledge of agriculture, he said.

To obtain the minor, students must complete a minimum of 18 hours in courses offered by the College of Agriculture, with at least one, two-or-more credit hour courses in each of three different areas.

General areas

The general areas include animal science (animal science, poultry and wildlife sciences or veterinary science); plant sciences (agronomy, horticulture or forestry) and crop and commodity protection (entomology, weed science or plant pathology).

Agricultural economics, agricultural education, food science and technology and mechanized agriculture are other areas from which a course may be chosen.

At least 9 hours of the agricultural courses must be at the 200 level or above.
