Legs, knees kick for cancer

By Tom Hinrichs

When it comes to raising money for charity, Beta Sigma Psi fraternity appears to have a leg up on the other Greek houses on campus. The members of this fraternity are sponsoring a "Miss Legs" and "Mr. Knobby Knees" contest during Greek week to raise money for the American Cancer Society.

Pictures of nine shapely pairs of legs and of nine pairs of knobby knees are on display in the Nebraska Union. Votes are cast for the knees and legs by donating money to the American Cancer Society. The money is deposited into canisters corresponding to the pictures. The winners will be the pictures that receive the most money.

The subjects of the winning photos will be awarded the titles "Miss Legs" and "Mr. Knobby Knees," which they will hold for a year. The titles along with trophies will be presented to "Miss Legs" and "Mr. Knobby Knees" at the Greek week dance Friday. Nine fraternities and nine sororities sent representatives to the contest.

The contest is the idea of Tom Maul, Beta Sigma Psi. Maul said contests of this nature are held at Kearney State College. The contest began Monday morning, and according to Maul not much money was raised the first day. People came in mainly to look at the pictures, Maul said. The contest will end Friday.

Lincoln City Council approves cable TV sale despite protests

By Betsie Ammons

The Lincoln City Council voted Monday to approve the sale of the community antenna television system (CATV) and transfer of capital stock of TV Transmission, Inc. to Cable Vision Investors of Denver, Inc.

The decision was made despite a plea from members of the Media Access Project to delay

The council agreed to a rate increase from $4.65 to $6.50, which applies to single subscribers. There are approximately 18,000 cable television users in Lincoln. Development of a public access channel was also approved.

Cable Vision Inc. signed an agreement with Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph to purchase TV Transmission, Inc., a subsidiary of LT&T. A Saturday deadline was set to complete the transaction.

John Pokorny of Media Access Project (MAP) appeared before the council Monday to call for delay in action until a more thorough investigation could be made in the financial matters involved in the sale.

Pokorny accused Cable Vision, Inc. of being a "tax shelter" for investors, and said they would be making unjust profits. A representative of the company said they are a privately owned corporation and that these remarks were

Ron Kurtenbach of MAP came to the hearings a second week to call for "straightforward, honest" talk among the council members when deciding the outcome. He reiterated his statements of the previous week asking for less control of public access stations.

Kurtenbach said that on Cable TV coverage of the City Council's March 3 meeting, he was censored when spelling out an obscenity.

Councilman Bob Sikyta told Kurtenbach that if he was paying for the cable TV service in his home, it was his right to determine whether or not his children would be hearing obscenities over the air.

The council voted to set up a CATV advisory board designed to establish rules and regulations for the use of the public access station.

Kurtenbach said he feared this would prove to be a censorship board.

Councilman John Robinson told Kurtenbach that the structure and membership of the committee would be set up at a later date, and that many groups would be represented.

Representatives of Cable Vision Inc. and the council agreed to renegotiation sessions held every three years. The sessions will deal with restructuring of programming and discussion on present services.
