

RHA hires Jackie O to aid Greek relations

By Marion Spookus

Resident's Holocaust Association (RHA) members voted Thursday to extend the election date for executive positions one more month to May 10, the day after final examinations.

A roll call vote was summoned after the meeting was delayed two hours so that representatives could be dragged to Scramm Hall for a quorum to be reached. The proposal was unanimously approved after which three-fourths of the representatives promptly departed.

According to Tim Seversen, RHA president, he will not announce his candidacy for re-election.

"This is the year of the independent," he said.

No place like home

In old business, Housing Director Richard Strongarm requested new recommendations covering residence hall contracts in addition to RHA's suggestion to use $94.50 of the $95 increase in housing rates for rodent control. These recommendations were due Feb. 10.

In other moldy business, RHA's social chairman encouraged dorm-Greek relations by requesting functions between living units.

"We must remember that Greeks are humans too," contended the chairman.

In regular business, members voted down a proposal that would bring cable television to all rooms, thereby increasing isolation of students.

"We'll only see our floor mates during commercials," said one concerned representative.

'Ralph Spoilsport, here'

Members generally accepted the proposal to extend 24-hour visitation to associative-living floors in Abel Hall and to permit alcohol in graduate dorms.

However, Ken Sweatlow, assistant director of housing, said the Housing Office could not back these proposals to the NU Board of Regents, who wouldn't touch them with a ten-foot pole anyway.

In new business, members proposed four changes in the association's constitution. These amendments must be published three times prior to the slated election date, unless this date isn't decided at election time, then on any day that is convenient for the representatives, with the stipulation that a quorum is reached.

In other business, President Seversen suggested that dorm governments begin plans for RHA Week, since it will start at UNL in only seven short days.

Spandextrianacht worth missing

By Don Bugless

Second semester's second most extravagant extravaganza will be held tonight and early Wednesday morning, according to Fred Mailman, Union Program Council (UPC) president.

The Spandextrianacht is expected to draw entertainers from as far away as 24th and Q Sts. and will feature many of the local campus weirdos.

Mailman said he and Carrie Dexterous, assistant programming director, have been planning this activity for nearly three days now. The idea for the 10 hours of fun and frolic was formulated in a brainstorming session at the Dexterous apartment.

Dexterous said that no such spring program has been successful before, but declared, "We're giving it that old college try. RAH!" Dexterous is also a member of UNL Yell Squad.

Mary had

Spandextrianacht is a word with no connections to any currently known language, according to Joe Hspringflitgrphylmp, modern language and literature dean.

Hspringflitgrphylmp said the nearest derivation would come from a girdle (Spandex) manufactured by the Playtex Company. He said that may be stretching to truth a bit, though, "but when you're in a bind, who cares?"

The Spandextrianacht will be stuffing three days of activity into a "tight" schedule.

Kicking off the evening will be the entire UNL varsity football team doing the Devaney version of the "Nutcracker Suite," at 6 p.m. in the Centennial Room.

A little lamb

The squad has been rehearsing for several days now, with all the zest and vigor with which they hit the grindstone with the addition of the pink tutus, said Alice Fieldmarshall, Devaney's secretary and head choreographer.

At 7 p.m., after the nuts have been cracked, a dinner will be served in the Union Harvest Room. According to Mildred Oilyfry, Union chief chef, the dinner will carry out the Spandextrianacht theme by serving a meal that stretches the diner both ways.

The Union bowling lanes, pool room and the Freshman Bookstore will all offer some type of orgiastic activity at some time during the evening.

Excitement won't be lacking for the ladies, either, Mailman said.

The medical world

He said Dexterous has spent the most of last semester enticing the entire male staff of the English Department to add to the festivities.

The group of professors and assistant professors will be doing a literal take off of Burlesque in the Union's second floor Ladies' Lounge.

Mailman said that tickets are now on sale for another of the evenings highlights. He said the Sough Desk will present, for public consumption, three peeks at any one filthy magazine of the spectator's choice for the nominal fee of 25 cents.

Eight showings of the Pakistanian film, "Dandria goes to the Circus," without the English subtitles, will be presented in the Small Auditorium. Dexterous said this should be a treat for all the students at UNL majoring in Pakistani.

Was astounded

Al Bennett, Union program director, said the Spring Spandextrianacht will prove nothing, "but it sure is a hell of a lot of fun trying, isn't it?"

As to how the morning will end, Mailman delivered his comment, "Soon, I hope."
