

Dixie Rockers

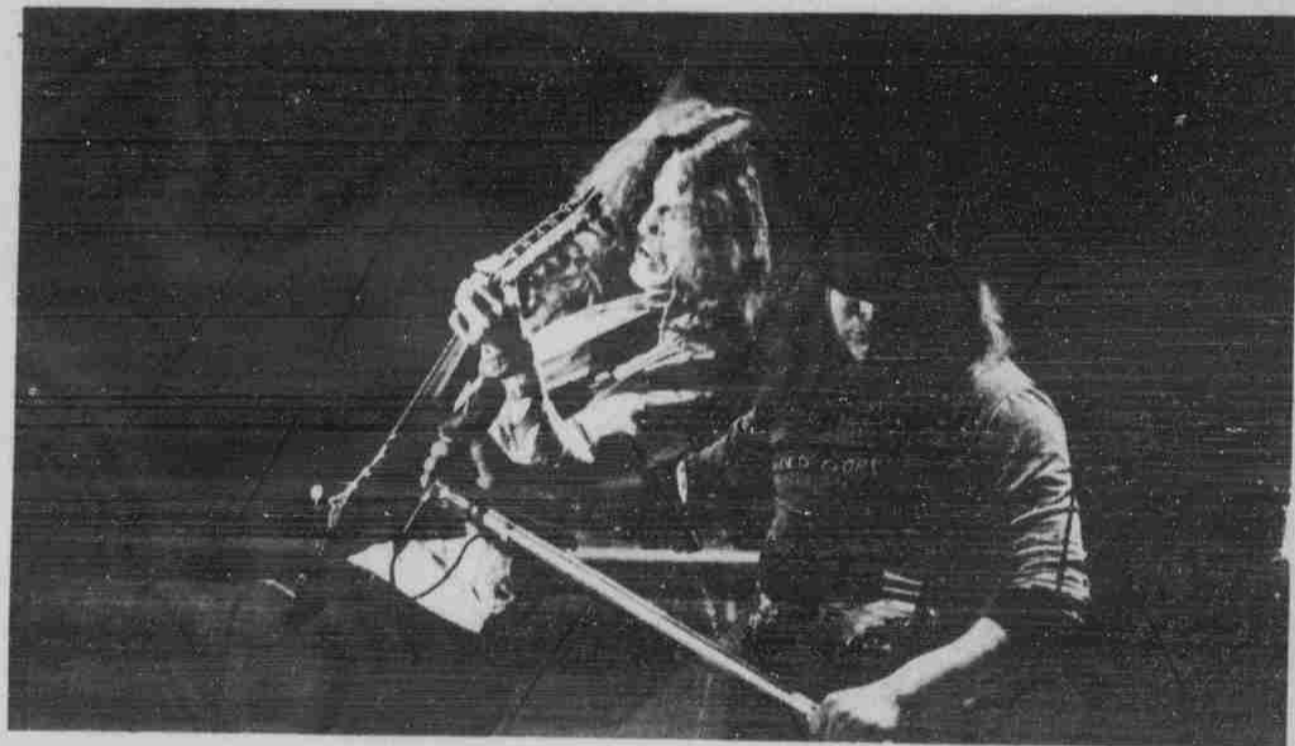

Photos by Ted Kirk, story by David Ware

It's great to be from the South, they say. To be born south of the Mason-Dixon line is to be given license to commit inflectional mayhem on the English language, swig straight bourbon from the bottle, let a three-inch excess fall gracefully over your belt-buckle and drop "damn" into any conversation, provided it is accompanied by "Yankees."

In short, you can relax, son—have a good time and be comfortable. Something like that came off Thursday, when Dixie Rockers Lynryd Skynyrd and the Charlie Daniels Band played to an overflow Pershing Auditorium crowd. They were there to put on a show and have a good time doin' it, which is what they did with a vengeance. They also proved that Dixie Rock is a powerful missionary force, especially when combined with the faintest hint of a certain controlled substance and a fair dollop of good ol' fashioned Kentucky distilled dew.

Every Yankee in the house became an honorary Southerner for the night.
