

Chicano Culture Days feature dining, dancing

Chicano Culture Days, sponsored by the Mexican American Student Association (MASA) began Friday with a dance at the National Guard Armory and will continue through April 27, with all major activities scheduled for next weekend.

The culture days will include panel discussions, dinners, dances, and a Spanish mass.

Friday's activities will include a welcoming program at 2 p.m. in the Nebraska Union small auditorium. An announcement of weekend activities and a series of films will be shown, according to Marty Ramirez, MASA adviser.

At 6 p.m. Friday a dinner will be held in the Harvest room of the Union. Guest speaker will be Simon Orta, who will speak on bilingual education and Chicano education. A dance will be held following the dinner.

Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon a panel will discuss community issues. Panel members will include representatives from parent groups, G.I. Forum, G.I. Forum auxiliary, Mexican/American Commission, and the Lincoln and Omaha communities.

Saturday afternoon, a panel discussion with professors in Chicano Studies and Teachers College will begin at 1:15 in the Union Small Auditorium. Professors Ralph Vigil and Ralph Grajeda will represent Chicano Studies, and professors Joe Aguilar, Nicholas Aeyta, and Charlos Vallejo will represent Teachers College. Audience discussion and resolutions based on the panel discussions will follow, said Marina Talero, MASA member.

"Cervantes y los Caballeros", a musical group from Omaha, will play at a dance at 8 p.m. in the National Guard Armory, 1776 N. 10th.

A film, "Salt of the Earth" will be shown Sunday at noon at St. Mary's Church, 14th and K streets. The film will be followed at 2 p.m. by a Spanish mass at the church.

A fiesta with a pot luck dinner, games, dancers and singers is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday at St. Mary's.
