

Regents consider Big 8 convention

A proposed summer meeting of Big 8 conference regents did not occur, but officials from the NU Board of Regents who proposed and worked on the idea say there still is interest in such a get-together.

"Each of the states we contacted was in the middle of their budget discussions during the time the meeting was scheduled," said Robert Prokop, NU regent from Minden.

"But most of those people who said they couldn't come did indicate that they thought the idea had merit," according to William Swanson, the regents' corporation secretary.

Swanson said the meeting was scheduled for "some time in June," and would have been conducted "like any other regional conference or convention."

The regents were to discuss problems that are similar among the schools, according to Swanson.

Prokop said the meeting was to be at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, 33rd and Holdrege Streets.

"I put the initial thrust through to contact the board chairmen," Prokop said. "Then the planning was turned over to the board's corporate secretaries."

Attending regents would have been "going dutch," Prokop said, by paying their own expenses at the conference.

Swanson said that arrangements to have the meeting will be started again within the next month.

"There were a lot of problems with holding the meeting in June," Swanson said. "I can't remember them all. There were things like vacations and other business."
