Audio Systems & Design announces a free turntable/cartridge clinic.

September 22—October 4.

Now you will have the opportunity to evaluate the performance of your turntable and cartridge. Audio Systems and Design will have in our store, testing equipment that provides objective assessment of your record playing system's actual performance ability. You may watch each measurement made on your unit and will receive a written copy of the results - a complete evaluation of your record playing system.

Measurements made will include: evaluation of stylus; channel separation, balance and output voltage; weighted and unweighted rumble; wow and flutter; and tonearm resonance. All measurements will be made with your cartridge in the tonearm of your turntable. It's important to remember that they act as a unit when you are playing a record, and must be tested as such to have the results be meaningful.

We believe this clinic is an excellent opportunity to gain appreciable insight into your turntable, tonearm and cartridge ... how they operate as an integrated whole and how they affect the sound you hear.

We ask only two things: Please make an appointment. The individual nature of each testing session makes it mandatory. Call or stop in for your appointment. Secondly, bring in both turntable and cartridge.

To learn more about your equipment and how it performs, we invite you to take advantage of our free turntable/cartridge clinic.
