

UNL junior bowls 300

By Susie Reitz

While competing with 43 other students for the men's UNL bowling team Sunday afternoon, Jim Krebs rolled the first 300 game of his competitive career. "I've bowled 300 before in practice," said the UNL junior, "but never in any competition."

Krebs, one of three returners to the UNL team this year, said he also bowls in Lincoln and Omaha city leagues.

"I probably bowl about 30 games a week," he said.

Krebs practices with returning teammate Rick Kozoil. They have been bowling together since eighth grade, Krebs said, and were classmates at Creighton Prep in Omaha.

According to bowling team adviser Rollie Hughes, the team's nine members practice on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons in the Nebraska Union.

The UNL team is in two conferences, the Kansas-Nebraska Quadrangle conference and the Postal League. Hughes said men and women each have a team and a conference.

UNL competes with Kansas State, Kansas University (KU) and Wichita State in the Kansas-Nebraska conference.

The Postal League has nine teams which send in weekly scores for a seasonal ranking. The teams then meet in March for a tournament. This year the Postal League tournament will be in Lincoln, March 13 and 14.

The men's team finished first in the Postal League regular last year, Hughes said, and second in the tournament.

"The women finished last in the league last year," Hughes said, "but they have four returning members and two promising freshmen so it looks a lot better this year."

Five bowlers are taken on road trips, Hughes said, and are selected on their performance during the week.

Expenses for competition are paid by the members, Hughes said, since bowling is not a recognized intercollegiate sport in the Big Eight.

Band alumni play again

By Liz Crumley

Turn any way you can. That's the advice Jack Snider, director of UNL bands, gave 115 marching band alumni Saturday.

And they did. Carrying some old and tarnished instruments and marching to "There is No Place Like Nebraska" at Saturday's pregame show, the Cornhusker Marching Band alumni marked the end of the second annual meeting of the UNL Band Alumni Association.

About 150 persons attended the two-day reunion, according to Lynn Alexander, alumni association executive secretary.

Some came from as far away as California, New Jersey and Washington D.C., Alexander said, adding that there were representatives of classes from 1931 to 1974.

This year's meeting honored alumni who went to the 1941 Rose Bowl game, he said.

Free U classes unusual

Winetasting, beginning bridge, massage, drugs in America, polka dancing and transcendental meditation. Not exactly your average university classes.

These classes and more make up the Nebraska Free University (NFU).

NFU "provides an educational experience that can not be received in the university classroom," said Paul Morrison, second vice president of ASUN.

NFU classes normally meet once a week and, depending on the class, anywhere from a one-week to an eight-week session, said Jackie Learned, NFU chairman.

Free University, a standing committee of ASUN, has been allocated $800 in the ASUN budget, she said.

Registration for NFU is Sept. 29 through Oct. 3. A $1 registration fee enables students to enroll in as many classes as they wish.

Registration booths will be set up in the Nebraska Union between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., in the food service areas of residence halls between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Students wanting to register for classes with size limits must do so at the Nebraska Union.

First classes will begin Oct. 6, Learned said. She said registration booklets will be distributed in residence halls, fraternities, sororities and co-ops Wednesday or Thursday. The booklet will include times and places of classes.

"Last year at this time, we had 29 classes. This year we have close to 50 classes," Learned said.

Class instructors include UNL students, university instructors and local businessmen. The instructors are "experts in their field," Learned said, and range from freshmen to those with 15 years of experience in their field.

"The idea of Free University first came about in 1966," Learned said. "The students said they felt the university curriculum lacked a lot of relevant issues."

After a slow start in its first few years, Learned said 1,000 students registered for 45 NFU classes in 1970.

Greeks unite

For the first time, fraternity and sorority members will work jointly on Panhellenic and Interfraternity Council (IFC) committees, according to Jayne Anderson, Panhellenic and IFC coordinator.

The committees will be chosen through interviews conducted by the Panhellenic and IFC executive council. Anderson said any Greek interested in being on one of the seven committees may apply in the Panhellenic office. Interviews will be Tuesday and Wednesday night.

The seven committees include Public Relations, Greek Graffiti, Greek Follies, IFC Financial, Trivia Bowl, Rush Book and IFC Scholarship.

A civilian pilot's license for a few good college men.

We pay.

Learn to fly while you're still in college. The Marines will pay the bill—about $900 worth of lessons—for qualified members of the Platoon Leaders Class. You'll also be earning a Marine officer's commission through PLC summer training at Quantico, Virginia. And after graduation, you may be one of the few good men who go on to Marine pilot or flight officer training. Get the details from the Marine officer who visits your campus.
