

FAB queries fee schedule

By Marian Lucas

Rapid action by university officials to justify the present student fee schedule for part time students was urged by the Fees Allocation Board (FAB) Wednesday.

The FAB said they believed the present fee schedule for part time students is an apparent injustice. They added that they regret university administrators have moved so slowly in correcting or justifying this schedule.

"I think the student fee schedule is an immense injustice," board member Jim Lewis said.

A part-time, non-traditional student, Ely Zeats, presented what he called a discrepancy in the amount of student fees he paid. Zeats said because of his age and of his social situation, he would not use many of the facilities he paid for in the fee.

A modification of the University Program and Facilities Fee (UPFF) Funds categories was also submitted by an FAB subcommittee.

Previously, the 3 year-old FAB controlled only funds in the A-1 category which included student-directed organizations.

Now the board also directs what was formerly called A-2 funds. This used to be directed by Ely Meyerson, dean of student development, and sponsored organizations such as the Career Planning and Placement Center.

The category, now grouped under Fund A in the position paper, was divided into two types of funding:

—Users funded on a year-to-year basis.
—Users that demonstrate a need for projected funding.

A tentative schedule for the FAB's review of projected funding and Fund B, which includes debt services, student health, student union operations and union equipment funds, was presented.

Subcommittee member Dennis Martin said the committee's aim in presenting the timetable was so the FAB could look at aspects they hadn't viewed in the past.

"We don't want just their (the fund user's) budget," said Meyerson. "We need more information on the organization itself."

Don Wesely, acting FAB chairman, said the board is looking at how organizations have spent their money. He added that allocations will not be made until the spring.
