Flies bug campus

Flies have been driving UNL students up the wall this semester and a UNL entomology professor said tife flies will probably be back next year.

Bob Roselle said there is no way to control the flies. They can't be sprayed because they develop immunization, he said.

Roselle said there may have been more flies this year because more eggs were hatched in the spring. Each female fly can lay 400 to 500 eggs, which hatch in 10 to 14 days during the months from April to Oct.

That's right. When everyone went home from last Wednesday's party at the Radisson-Cornhusker, Russ Vanous tabulated all the people who paid their $50 deposit for the Snowbird, Utah trip, and there are only 24 spaces left, and the trip is almost three months away! Airfare, five nights lodging, and lift tickets for $215. A regular round trip airfare to Salt Lake is $153.47 alone. Get on the phone and call Russ Vanous right away if you want to go!
