

Nielsen is chosen council president

The Inter-Cooperative Council (ICC) has elected Robert Nielsen, a junior agronomy major, as its 1976 president. Nielsen, who is from Springfield, currently is president of the Brown Palace cooperative. Karen Jensen, a sophomore food and nutrition major from Hubbard, will serve as ICC vice-president and Robert Miller, a junior agronomy major from Springfield, is secretary-treasurer. Jensen is a Love Memorial Hall resident and Miller lives in Cornhusker Co-op.

ICC coordinates the five university-approved cooperative living units: Ag Men, Brown Palace, Cornhusker

Co-op, Love Memorial Hall and Pioneer House. The council has operated since 1955, although three of the living units have existed since the early 1940s.

Nielsen said ICC's functions are to promote cooperative living at UNL, to provide for the idea exchanges between co-ops and to provide social activities for members.

"As cheap as it is (to live in a cooperative), I don't see why more students aren't joining co-ops," he said.
