

Multi-purpose UNO center being planned

By Anita Stork

Plans for a multi-purpose University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) downtown education center are being developed following a state-sponsored survey, according to Sam Jensen, chairman of an Omaha higher education task force.

Jensen, an Omaha attorney, said results of a survey of 900 Omahans indicated the majority favored construction of such a center.

The task force, which is the planning committee for the proposed center, will contact the Nebraska Legislature, Jensen said, and "indicate a willingness to plan a center to be used by UNO, Metro Technical Community College and state offices."

"Originally the task force intended the center for use by UNO and Metro Tech only," Jensen said. "We then received a letter from Gov. J. James Exon citing use of the center for state offices also."

The survey, conducted by Selection Research Incorporated (SRI) at a cost of $6,000, indicated that nearly seven of 10 Omahans questioned favored construction of the center.

Jon Oberg, state budget analyst, said four options for use of the center were offered in the survey:

- UNO use alone: 23 per cent.
- Combination of UNO and Metro Tech use: 35 per cent.

cent.

- Combination of UNO and state offices: six per cent.
- Combination of all three: 27 per cent.

The majority of UNO students surveyed favored the Metro Tech-UNO combination. The NU Board of Regents passed a resolution at its Jan. 10 meeting endorsing UNO and state office usage, according to Regent Edward Schwartzkopf of Lincoln.

Comprised of education administrators from UNO, Creighton University, Dana College in Blair and Bellevue College, the task force will function as a resource and planning group when dealing with the Legislature, Jensen said.

The Legislature and its Appropriations Committees also are interested in state offices for the center, according to Jensen. He said state office use might be limited because of what he called the parking problem.

"A job center would not be practical because of the limited parking downtown," Jensen said. "An education office would be more appropriate."

An anonymous donor will contribute $2.5 million if downtown business interests will match funds and the Legislature will grant $5 million. Sources indicate the donor is Omaha construction firm owner Peter Kiewit, who also holds controlling interest in the World Publishing Co., publisher of the Omaha World-Herald.
