Voting soon on ag board distribution

A special election in late February will be for students in the College of Agriculture to vote on a proposed change in representation on the Agriculture Advisory Board.

The change is being proposed by the current board. The idea behind the change is to better represent the agriculture students on the board, said Larry Rasmussen, board president.

The change involves regrouping agriculture majors with their representative so that each student represents about the same number of students.

The proposed regrouping of divisions for representation is: 1) agricultural economics; 2) agricultural education, mechanized agriculture and agricultural journalism; 3) agricultural honors, general agriculture, two-year programs and undeclared; 4) animal science; 5) pre-veterinary science; 6) general agronomy, soil science and plant pathology; 7) food science and technology, horticulture, entomology and poultry science; 8) natural resources and pre-forestry.

Rasmussen, a senior agriculture major from Mead, said the election probably will be within the next two weeks because special elections of this kind must occur at least two months prior to the ASUN Senate general election, he said.
