Plants, planters to be displayed

Page Spence, Sheldon Gallery Art Shop manager, has announced the shop's next display: plants and planters.

The exhibit will open Tuesday and run until March 19. The plants will be supplied by Azalealand and Green Fingers, local house plant merchants and will be displayed in an assortment of ceramic, stoneware and porcelain planters made by area artists.

The featured potters include those made by three UNL School of Art graduate students: Kathleen Ricks from Tampa, Fla., Michael Hershey from Millersville, Penn., and Bill Rowe of Lincoln. Betty Wallace, a former art instructor at Nebraska Wesleyan University, and Lincoln artist Nancy Peterson also will have pottery on display in addition to several works by artists from outside-Nebraska.

Spence said the display will feature works by persons who have had exhibits in the art shop before and were invited back for a second showing. Size of the planters varies from four to twelve inches in diameter and the shapes include those suitable for hanging, on tables or floors, she said. All items are for sale, she added.

Jazz musicians will be featured

Twenty-two jazz musicians from eastern Nebraska will be featured in concert tonight at 8 p.m. in Kimball Recital Hall. The $2 admission charge goes to a scholarship fund sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha-Sinfonia, a professional music fraternity.

Two songs by the UNL Jazz Lab Band will open the 18th annual Portraits in Jazz concert, said Dennis Schneider, band director. After the guest musicians perform their eight sets, Schneider said, they and the 19-piece Jazz Lab Band will join in the finale, Duke Ellington's "C Jam Blues."

Schneider said the 22 featured performers range in age from 19 to more than 70.

Another highlight of the concert will be 13 selections from Carmina Burana, an oratorio written by Carl Orff and arranged for band by John Krance.
