RHA approves student jobs study

By Barbara Lutz

The UNL Residence Hall Association (RHA) approved a motion Thursday night to have the special Issues Committee study student employment feasibility for dormitory jobs usually contracted to Lincoln businesses.

Ken Sawyer, a junior history major, said he has read of programs at eastern universities where students are employed for small jobs such as carpentry and electronics.

"The program would be beneficial both to the students and the university," if they work together, he said.

RHA President Sue Ihne suggested RHA write to the "appropriate offices" and the Lincoln City Council supporting installation of a traffic signal at 10th and S streets.

A UNL student was hit by a car while crossing the street in front of the 501 Bldg. Oct. 14, 1975.

RHA also agreed to work with the Housing Policy Committee to plan an informal dinner and discussion for incumbents of the NU Board of Regents.

Ihne, a junior journalism major, said it would give students the opportunity to meet the regents, who in turn could learn students' concerns.

RHA members are especially interested in discussing regent action at their last meeting where 24-hour visitation and alcohol-consumption on campus were denied, Ihne said.

Pam Huscher, RHA social committee chairwoman, reported on RHA week, held annually to promote dormitory living.

Huscher, a senior textile major, said activities are planned at each dorm during the week of March 7 through 13.

In addition to Bicentennial meals, activities include a casino night, battle of the bands, polka dance and movie orgy.

Most of the programs are open to all university students, she said.

Aid deadline Monday

Students who wish to apply for scholarships and financial aid for the 1976 fall semester must do so by Monday, March 1, said Jack Ritchie, director of the Office of Scholarships and Financial Aids.

Ritchie said his office will help as many students as possible. He added that uncertainties concerning aid programs as well as rising living and educational costs have increased the number of students seeking financial assistance.
