Contest features sexy legs, knees

Sexy legs and knobby knees will receive recognition in the second Miss Legs and Mr. Knobby Knees contest sponsored by the Beta Sigma Psi fraternity.

The contest, which will raise money for the Summer Olympics in Montreal, will be today through Friday in the Nebraska Union main lounge, said Jim Riha, Beta Sigma Psi publicity chairman and a junior journalism major from Omaha. Although entries are from Greek houses, this is not a part of Greek Week, he said.

Pictures of legs will hang on the Union's main lounge wall, he said, in front of the pictures will be containers in which to donate money. The set of legs in the two divisions, sexy legs and knobby knees, which attracts the most money will win a trophy and the title, Miss Legs or Mr. Knobby Knees.

Last year the Beta Sigma Psi house raised about $500 for the American Cancer Society in their first Miss Legs and Mr. Knobby Knees contest, Riha said. The average amount each set of legs collected was about $20, Riha said. He added that any donation, no matter how small, is greatly appreciated.
