'Ears to a victory

The Husker's 45-13 drubbing of the University of Indiana (IU) Hoosiers Saturday in Bloomington, Ind., appeared to answer some troubling questions that had arisen after the 6-6 tie with Louisiana State University (LSU) last week.

Two of the questions, whether they could score more than two touchdowns in a game and whether they could win a game (the Huskers had done neither in their three previous outings), were answered early in the game against the Hoosiers.

As they did against LSU, Nebraska took the opening kickoff and marched for a touchdown. Junior fullback Dodie Donnell capped the 74-yard drive with a one-yard plunge.

Al Eveland then booted the extra point, the first of seven for the afternoon and later added a 29-yard field goal to calm any doubts about his kicking.

Four minutes later

Before Indiana knew what hit, UNL made the score 14-0 four minutes later on a Monte Anthony one-yard touchdown run.

UNL then stretched its lead to 24-0 by halftime.

Cornerback Dave Butterfield's pass interception just before intermission and two fumble recoveries gave the Huskers three turnovers at the half, answering the question whether the Black Shirts could force turnovers. They had forced only one, a pass interception on the last play of the game, against LSU.

Anthony and I-back Richard Berns added touchdowns in the third quarter before the Huskers closed out their scoring in the fourth quarter on a nine-yard run by I-back Dave Gillespie, who saw his first action of the year. Wingback Curtis Craig and quarterback Tom Sorley, who directed the last touchdown drive, also saw their first action of the young season. All three sat out last week with injuries.

Many Huskers limped off the field with minor injuries during the game but defensive end Ray Phillips suffered a hip pointer which could make him a doubtful starter for the Huskers' home opener next Saturday against Texas Christian University (TCU).
