Lincoln's third recycling center sponsored by the Citizen's for Environmental Improvement will open Saturday.

Third collection site will open

Lincoln residents shouldn't be buried under a mountain of trash because Lincoln's third collection site for recycling materials opens Saturday.

The opening will be at 1 p.m. at Gere Library, 56th and Normal Blvd. Citizens for Environmental Improvement Inc., sponsors this project and two others—a recycling center at 2535 N. 33rd St. and another collection site at the County-City Bldg. parking lot.

Mayor Helen Boosalis is scheduled to open the site Saturday, said Connie Stauss, the group's business manager.

Newspapers, cardboard, tin cans and aluminum are accepted at all three sites. However, she said they do not accept glass, plastic or magazines.

The paper is recycled into gypsum board, the tin cans into copper and aluminum into beverage cans, she said.

About 40 tons of paper, three tons of tin and 500 pounds of aluminum are handled each month, Stauss said. Resale price "depends on the market," she added.

The recycling center and collection sites are popular, she said, "although it is a matter of interpretation as to whether they are a big business."

"We make enough money on resale to keep going," she explained.

Stauss said that from March 1975 to March 1976, the business cost $5,475. Expenses included maintenance of the truck used for hauling junk from the collection sites to the recycling center, insurance, paying a "skeleton crew," utilities and office expenses.

The first recycling center was opened in Lincoln in 1971, Stauss said.

Participation has increased since then, she added, although in the last few years it has stayed about the same.

The number of persons who use the center and collection sites is difficult to determine because they "don't come more than once every six weeks," Stauss said.

CSL hears complaints about parking

By Barbara Lutz

Residence Hall Association (RHA) President Judy Siminoc told the Council on Student Life (CSL) Thursday she has received inaccurate and inadequate information and red tape from the university parking coordinator and campus police concerning on-campus parking.

Siminoc said students have been given different answers from John Duve, parking coordinator, and campus police to questions about overselling of permits for Area 2 parking north and east of Cather-Pound residence hall.

ASUN President Bill Mueller said he has heard from 12 to 200 parking stickers for that area were sold, without spaces allocated to them.

If lots have been oversold, Siminoc said, some students have paid $25 for a privilege which may not exist.

Lack of communication between residence halls and parking officials is demonstrated by signs posted in Cather and Pound, but not Selleck, residence halls advising that Area 2 permits would be honored in area 3 lots, she said.

The only information students received about the Area 3 lot at 19th and Vine streets being changed to an Area 2 lot is on a white piece of paper covering the sign with the area number written on it with black magic marker, Siminoc said.

Inferior pavement and lighting in overflow lots is also a problem the RHA president said.

Many students park on streets closer to their residence halls rather than in overflow lots, she said, because of the high risk of women being molested and valuable auto accessories being stolen.

Siminoc said, "These problems should have been foreseen when students registered." Housing officials knew residence halls would be filled causing a shortage of parking spaces, she said.

RHA presented several resolutions to CSL advising regulating the sale of parking permits and paving the open area south of the Coliseum.

CSL member and English Dept. professor, George Wolf said the appropriate committee to deal with the resolution is the Campus Police Advisory Board.

Schorr to talk at symposium

Daniel Schorr, former CBS news correspondent, is scheduled to speak at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the Nebraska Union Centennial Room.

Schorr's speech, The People's Right to Know, will be the keynote address for the Power and Conspiracy in America, Who's in Control, symposium sponsored by Union Program Council (UPC).

A CBS correspondent since 1953, Schorr resigned from the network Sept. 28. He had been suspended for seven months for giving a classified congressional report to the Village Voice newspaper on alleged CIA and FBI illegal activities.

After the incident, the House Ethics Committee began an investigation to determine who gave the report to Schorr. The committee had voted to keep the report from the public.

The committee then voted not to cite Schorr for contempt for his refusal to reveal his source.

Schorr won three Emmy awards for his coverage of Watergate. Before joining CBS, he was a reporter for the Christian Science Monitor and the New York Times.
