

UNL departments falsify some records—Wiseblood

The UNL Departments of Philosophy and English have been altering job records of women who have filed discrimination suits against the university, according to Celeste Wiseblood of the Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women.

Alterations include inserting statements saying the women were lazy and had poor

power and conspiracy in america

job attitudes, she said. Wiseblood is the project director for the women's employment opportunities division of the commission.

She said the falsified statements were then dated prior to when discrimination suits were filed by the women.

Wiseblood refused to disclose names because "the matter is currently under investigation."

Wiseblood's talk Wednesday was part of the Power and Conspiracy in America:

Who's In Control? symposium sponsored by Union Program Council.

A former UNL student and graduate of Rutgers Law School, Wiseblood said her interest in ending discrimination began when she was advised against going to law school because of her sex.

"There are two types of discrimination, overt and covert," Wiseblood said. "Overt is not hiring women or underpaying them compared to men with similar experience and education."

She said covert discrimination includes police and firefighter regulations of minimum height and weight.

Women are excluded from skilled craft jobs and the preceding apprentice programs," Wiseblood said.

"In Nebraska, only one per cent of those in apprenticeships are women," Wiseblood said. "And this is where many of the high-paying jobs are."

Nebraska's state administrative jobs pay women an average of $12,000 annually, compared to a $15,000 average for men, Wiseblood said.

calendar

9:30 a.m. — United Way film, Nebraska Union Auditorium.

10 a.m. — Union Program Council symposium, Statutes and Status, Union Ballroom.

Noon — Saratoga School of Lincoln, Union South Conference Room.

12:30 p.m. — Swanson School of Omaha, Union North Conference Room.

1 p.m. — UPC symposium, The Unquiet Death of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, Union Ballroom.

2 p.m. — Health Education staff, Union 243.

3:30 p.m. — UPC symposium, The Rosenberg Case, Union Ballroom.

4 p.m. — Venezuelan students, Union 242.

4 p.m. — Council of American Indian Students, Executive Council, Union 343.

5 p.m. — Fees Allocation Board, Union 243.

5:30 p.m. — Sigma Delta Epsilon, Union Harvest Room A.

6 p.m. — Christian Science Organization, Union 202.

6 p.m. — Search committee for vice chancellor of student affairs, Union 216.

6:30 p.m. — Red Cross, Union North Conference Room.

6:30 p.m. — Residence Hall Association, Union 222.

6:30 p.m. — Builders, Union South Conference Room.

7 p.m. — Baptist Student Union, Union 242.

7 p.m. — Undergraduate Psychology Association, Union Auditorium.

7 p.m. — Free University, "Tolkien", Union 343.

7:30 p.m. — Math Counselors, Union 225 B-C.

7:30 p.m. — Mexican-American Student Association, Union 232.

7:30 p.m. — Free University, "Introduction to Magic", Union 337.

7:30 p.m. — UPC symposium, Where Does The Future Lie, Union Ballroom.

crossword puzzle

Edited by WILL WENG

ACROSS

- 1 Used the bus
- 5 Cry of disgust
- 10 Dead Sea kingdom
- 14 Dedicated
- 15 Verdi's country
- 16 — eye
- 17 Postcard wheeze
- 20 Roofing material
- 21 Part of a film dog's name
- 22 Sea eagles
- 23 Locations
- 25 Supplies
- 26 Sidetracked
- 30 Chemical suffix
- 32 Let up on
- 33 Delaware Water

- 35 Out of bed
- 40 Postcard wheeze
- 43 Of a foot bone
- 44 Savings-book entry: Abbr.
- 45 Cleaving tool
- 46 Occasion for two
- 48 Most bleak
- 50 Preference
- 54 Barker's harangue
- 56 Willow
- 57 Japanese coin
- 58 Caustic
- 63 Postcard wheeze
- 66 Suffix in zoology
- 67 Show off
- 68 Later
- 69 Prefix for gram
- 70 Nostradamus and others
- 71 Large amounts

DOWN

- 1 Cheering words
- 2 White House room
- 3 Prima donna
- 4 Make revisions
- 5 Poke's occupant

- 6 Gazed intently
- 7 Eucharistic elements
- 8 Alicia —, Cuban ballerina
- 9 Neighbor of Mont.
- 10 Rhythm
- 11 Sheeplike
- 12 Prepared to fire
- 13 — this house
- 18 Undiluted
- 19 Puts off
- 24 Entertain
- 26 Paving stone
- 27 Laughter
- 28 Customer
- 29 Kind of paper
- 31 French novelist
- 34 Greek letter
- 36 Chancy
- 37 Royal address

- 38 Genesis name
- 39 "Eye of —, and toe of frog"
- 41 Hash house
- 42 Georgia Tech grad
- 47 Convince
- 49 Wings
- 50 Namely
- 51 Digression

- 52 Hemp fiber
- 53 Giggle
- 55 Small bird
- 58 Noisy bird
- 60 Gambling center
- 61 Inflexible
- 62 Rooms
- 64 Goddess of plenty
- 65 Hospital V.I.P.'s

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

PAPA SETTO EDDS
EXAM ETHOS MORA
LAMP ROOMS DUEL
TSP TAIME SAL
NOOPLA EIGHTY HOLDTHESETRUTHS
SWEDER JONES
TET ARENA STE
SCLEP FACES
TODESELF EVIDENT
ANITAS ELEVEN KEN CRANE AND ETAL POSIT ERIE
TORE ALONE NINE
NAYS WANE SOAP

UNL homecoming...

Continued from p. 1

Candidate Julie Hurt, a 20-year-old junior majoring in natural resources, said she was nominated by the members of Alpha Phi sorority, which chooses one person every year to run for homecoming queen.

She said she thought candidates were chosen on the basis of outside activities and that they should be representative of the university.

"Any junior could fill out the application," she said. "Everyone could have the opportunity to run."

Hurt said she belongs to the UNL Wildlife Club and Alpha Zeta, an agricultural honorary, as well as being a cheerleader.

"It's a big honor to be a candidate," said Kim Chace, a 20-year-old junior with a double major in human development and elementary education. "It's humiliating when people cut you down."

Candidates symbolic

Chace said candidates should be a "broad representative of the university."

Through her involvement in Builders, Home Economics Advisory Board and the search committee for a new chairman of the Human Development Dept., Chace said she had "learned to converse with faculty and administration, as well as students."

Homecoming royalty will "always be a part of homecoming," the Gamma Phi Beta member said.

Kevin Behne, a 20-year-old junior majoring in history, said he thought homecoming royalty is a "waste of time."

"I am more concerned about Nebraska winning (the football game) than who wins king or queen," he said.

No vote here

Behne said he didn't vote for the homecoming royalty this year and that he wouldn't consider being a candidate.

Beth Siffing, a 19-year-old undeclared sophomore said she didn't vote either, because she said she didn't know when and where to vote.

Siffing said she has never considered being a candidate for homecoming royalty, and that "it's really a thing more for sororities and fraternities."

Homecoming royalty is an "old college tradition," said Val Kotrous, a senior geology major.

"I didn't vote because I didn't know elections were being held (Monday) because I heard the Greeks were trying to organize a slate," he said.

Kotrous said one indication that homecoming royalty has become "a joke" at UNL is last year's election of Ralph Crabtree, a cartoon character.

Groups active

"I don't think it is possible to achieve even representation (among homecoming candidates)," he said. "Some groups are more interested."

Julie Schindler, Tassels president, said Corn Cobs and Tassels were satisfied with the number of females applying, but dissatisfied with the male turnout.

But no one has mentioned phasing out the king side of the royalty, Schindler said.

"It's a possibility, but not very probable," she said.

She said the two sponsoring clubs try to make everyone aware of the chance to apply for homecoming royalty by sending letters of application to every living unit. She added that she is concerned with students living off-campus who might not be aware of how to apply for homecoming royalty.

Students must fill out an application, including a summary about, "Why I want to be homecoming royalty."

Panel interviews

Each person is then interviewed by a six-member panel, Schindler said, which includes the presidents of Corn Cobs and Tassels, a state legislator, an administration and faculty member and a member of the Athletic Dept.

Candidates are screened on the basis of their academic performance, how well they represent the university, outside activities, poise and overall enthusiasm, Schindler said.

This year 35 females applied for homecoming royalty.

Besides receiving a crown, the homecoming queen receives a bouquet of roses and the king gets a football signed by members of the football team, Schindler said.

About 500 students voted for homecoming royalty on City Campus Monday, and 200 to 300 on East Campus Tuesday. Dan Sedlacek, a member of the Corn Cobs Homecoming Committee, said he didn't know how those numbers compared to previous years.

Homecoming royalty will be announced at Rek-nuh-roc Friday night.

We're hard to find... only once.

