

Renovations set for campus units

The UNL Maintenance Dept. has planned semester-break renovations for several campus buildings during Christmas vacation, but it will be limited because of a lack of funds, according to Maintenance Director Jerry Delhay.

Remodeling work will be done in eight buildings on East and City campuses, Delhay said, and will cost between $85,000 and $90,000 for labor and materials.

Delhay said financing is limited because most remodeling costs must be taken from the department's yearly budget, "which has to last all year."

Some costs also will be taken from various department funds and a UNL miscellaneous renovation budget, he said.

Major renovation will be done to restrooms in Henzlik Hall and Kiesselbach Crops Research Lab on East Campus, he said. New lavatories and fixtures will be installed, and the rooms will be painted.

Delhay added that energy-conserving incandescent lighting will be installed to replace the rooms' fluorescent lights.

Other renovations include remodeling Dental College administration offices, installing new doors in the Nebraska Union Centennial Room and a new door to the handicapped ramp in the Union, and ceiling and stair rebuilding and painting in Marvel Baker Hall, the 501 Bldg. and the Former Law Bldg.

Maintenance still has a list "three times that long" of other buildings needing renovation, Delhay said.

The eight buildings received priority to be made safer and more attractive for students, and because it will be easier to work in them when students are not present, Delhay said.

Small repair work will be done throughout the campus during the break, he added.

Earthquake

Van, Turkey—Many homeless earthquake victims in eastern Turkey are refusing to leave their devastated villages "but the winter will eventually force them all down from the mountains, a relief officer has said. An estimated 40,000 persons lost their homes in the quake last Wednesday, and four tent cities are being set up to give some of them shelter. Others are housed temporarily in schools and public buildings. With the temperature below freezing and heavy snows left by a blizzard Sunday, Tayar Hindistan of the Turkish Red Crescent reported that many villagers would not leave because of their farm animals. Before the quake and the blizzard took their tolls, farmers in the area had an estimated one million head of cattle and sheep, government officials said. They said the government was considering buying the cattle from the homeless so the owners would go to refugee centers.

was arrested without a struggle Monday morning after more than 70 shots were fired during two hours from atop a Holiday Inn, police said. He was charged with attempted murder. One of the shots struck Patrolman Barry Cook just above the heart but he was wearing a bullet-proof vest and was only slightly injured. Other shots struck cars and buildings. There were no other injuries. Police said they had determined no motive for the shooting spree.

Pardon board

Salt Lake City—Convicted murderer Gary Gilmore went before the Utah Board of Pardons Tuesday to demand that he be executed, but he was warned by the chairman that "you do not control the process of this board and the process of the State of Utah." Gilmore appeared healthy as he went before the board, despite a hunger strike he has been on since Nov. 19, for a review of his sentence of death before a firing squad for killing a motel clerk. Earlier, Gilmore, who says death is better than prison, wrote the board a defiant letter laced with obscenities urging it to uphold his death sentence. "Let's do it, you cowards. I do not seek or desire your clemency..." he said in the four-line letter made public Monday. "The sentence was set—I accept it."

Steel prices

Plains, Ga.—The president of America's seventh largest steel company Tuesday volunteered to bring a delegation representing the industry to Plains to tell President-elect Jimmy Carter why they think recent steel price increases are justified.

health tips: frostbite

Provided by health aides

With the onset of winter it seems like everyone is concerned about catching a cold or the flu. Those definitely are things to worry about with cold weather, but one also should be aware of frostbite.

Frostbite begins after prolonged exposure to the cold. It is indicated by white or grayish-yellow numb skin when tissue freezes.

The extremities and face most commonly are affected, but other parts also may be affected if exposed.

When the exposure to the cold has ended, these symptoms may occur: redness, tingling, prickling, burning and swelling of tissue with itching.

Frostbite victims should not:

—Rub frostbitten skin. Frozen tissue is fragile and easily damaged.

—Expose frozen part to intense direct heat of hot stove, radiator or heat lamp. You may further damage tissue by burns because of lack of sensation.

—If feet are involved, do not walk.

Frostbite victims should:

—If outside, thaw frostbitten part by using patient's body heat or that of someone else. For example, put frozen hand under armpit or put warm hand over frozen ear or nose.

—If inside, immerse frostbitten areas in comfortably warm water, about 103 to 107 degrees, for about 30 minutes. Do not use hot water.

—Seek medical evaluation as soon as possible.

Frostbite cases may range from mild to severe, so be sure to get medical attention.
