Parking lot problem discussed

By John Minnick

Complaints about UNL's parking situation were voiced at a meeting sponsored by the UNL Parking Liaison Board Thursday.

Three students and a UNL staff member went before the board to voice their opinions.

Barb Berry, board chairman, said the purpose of the meeting was to find out what a majority of students want in the way of parking improvements and to discuss the possibility of raising parking permit fees to $60 next year.

Lyle George, a sophomore from Dixon, said he would like to see more parking on East Campus around Burr-Fedde Residence Halls where a shortage of parking exists.

"We can park in an Area 30 lot on 33rd Street, but it is an unimproved lot and is not a safe area," he said.

George said that a hold-up has occurred in the lot and that women in Burr-Fedde are afraid to park there.

The problem of City Campus students parking in East Campus lots is also a problem, he said. George suggested that students illegally parked in East Campus lots should be ticketed.

Ken Marienau, a sophomore from Kearney, said the university needs more parking spaces on campus. He said the university should combine Area 2 and Area 3 lots into one lot.

"Parking will depend on how much everyone is willing to pay, but $60 is ridiculous," he said. "We are being nickled and dimed to death here."

Marienau said any increase in parking fees should be separate from student fees.

Sylvia Reed, a UNL custodian, said she was opposed to any increase in parking fees. She said the current $25 price was already too high.

Barry said the price increase was proposed by UNL Parking Coordinator John Duve in an effort to encourage students to carpool and save money and to decrease the number of cars on campus.

Doug Miller, a board member from Genoa, said a lot of people think an increase to $60 is a joke, but an increase next year is a reality.

Mike Gibson, a sophomore from Omaha said he was concerned with the safety in the lot north of Harper, Schramm and Smith Residence Halls.

"The lowness of the curb and guard rail by the drainage ditch can cause cars to go over it when it is icy," he said.

Gibson, a Harper resident, said he had talked to John Duve, and new guard rails have been ordered, but they are too short and only will worsen the problem.

Miller said the recommendations given to the board Thursday will be submitted to Duve and the Parking Regulations Board will act on them.
