

Coordinator: board's goal is informing students

Every UNL student should know what the Student Alumni Board does, according to newly appointed board coordinator Steve Hutchinson. He said his goal for his year in office is to make that happen.

Hutchinson will take over as Student Alumni Board coordinator next semester. Other newly appointed officers are assistant coordinator Lori Rosenlof and recorder Dara Gill. They were appointed March 17.

Hutchinson said he will initiate new programs to make students more aware of the Student Alumni Board.

"When people recognize our potential they'll be able to use the board more effectively," he said. The Student Alumni Board is designed to provide interaction between students, faculty members and alumni, Hutchinson said.

The board sponsors Red Carpet Days, when high school seniors who have won Regents scholarships are invited to spend the day at UNL, he said. The board also prepares a senior pamphlet which provides seniors with graduation information.

In addition, this year it is sponsoring "Inside Washington," inviting UNL graduates who are now employed in Washington D.C. to conduct seminars April 4 and 5 for UNL students.

Hutchinson said a reception for freshmen who are children of UNL alumni is planned for next fall. He said he thinks this will create better communication between alumni and university students.

He said he thinks informing freshmen about board activities eventually will result in a better informed student community.

Hutchinson explained why he wanted to be coordinator: "I enjoy working with people, and I wanted the experience the position offers."

The sophomore computer science major from Bellevue said he has been a member of the board for two years. He first became involved with it as an outside resource person for Red Carpet Days, he said.
